COURT SEATING

'Let Right Be Done'

Justices, Commissioners, Your Grace, Honorable Ladies and Gentlemen, Friends…

Welcome to the plenary seating of the ITNJ Judicial Commission of Inquiry into Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse. The International Tribunal for Natural Justice was constituted in June, 2015, at a ceremonial seating, and ratification event, which was attended by a number of diplomatic delegations and witnessed by many thousands of people from across the globe. This Commission of Inquiry is the first such undertaking by the court and intends to make its findings and declarations heard far and wide.

The Tribunal has amassed and continues to amass substantial support from leadership around the world in the political, diplomatic, religious, academic, and intellectual domains. More significantly, the ITNJ and its Commission carries the weight, the dignity, and the mandate of thousands of living men and women of the living soil, and it is this dignity, and this mandate which carries the highest in law as it does in morality. This tribunal is here to remind good government and institutions of the world to that very fact. Statutory overreach and bureaucratic obfuscation are one of the most perilous elements in our modern society, giving color of law to lawlessness, and giving impunity to petty tyrants and corrupt officials. In many instances this leads to the prorogation of a culture of bullying, of racketeering, and malevolence which poisons the very root of our social infrastructure.

This Tribunal is also here to serve and protect those good men and women in service of government and institutions, those good oath-keepers, and those noble and decent servants of the public interest who often times are the ones most in need of remedy and recourse. In the course of this commission we will be faced with a great many sensational, volatile, and often conflicting testimonials and accounts. Indeed some of the accounts will be horrific, and may be more than likely challenge the conceptual framework of most good people of the world. Such is the nature of discovery within such a forum and we would urge all observers and participants to hold counsel and stay their opinions in order to allow for an organic unfoldment of witness accounts and of expert definitions.

This commission of inquiry is expected to last between six to twelve months, which will be entirely dependent on the progress we are able to make given our resources and our limitations. Not least of which is the complex scheduling of the diaries of scores of justices, commissioners, and professional advisors to this commission. Hearings will be conducted virtually in the weeks ahead, punctuated by in situ seatings which will take place in Washington, D.C., the Hague, and in Rome.

The final commission report will then be published and released to all relevant parties and interest, as well as made available to the public at large. It is the hope and expectation of this court that the official commission report will act as the catalyst to a great awakening of people of the world to the horror of Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse. Once brought to light, the lives and futures of millions of tormented souls will be transformed forever. That is the pledge, and that is the covenant which binds all of us here to millions of people of the world who are watching these proceedings and who, by the Grace of G-d almighty, will be the standing army to this most noble undertaking.

We can think of no greater cause to submit our attention and our purpose towards.

(Founder/Trustee Emeritus)

Introduction TO THE ITNJ

The ITNJ initiative has arisen as a response to the disregard for the rule of law exhibited by (alleged) public officials, corporate directors, and 'world leaders' who have deliberately privatized and weaponized the governments of the world against their own people. It is the culmination of years of endeavour and research on the part of many people from a diverse set of backgrounds dedicated to safeguarding a viable future for human kind. It is recognized that we the people must take responsibility in holding government to account when it violates basic human rights and natural law. Whenever the community at large neglects to do this, false precedents are set which allow for the furtherance of corruption to continue:

Such violations include, but are not limited to:

- Starting wars based on lies
- Wantonly pillaging the ecosystem
- Authorizing torture
- Authorizing slavery
- Holding non-violent and peaceful peoples in prison
- Engaging in organized child abuse
- Use of media to wilfully deceive
- Use of the private banking sector to systematically impoverish the world
- Deliberately training police and military to escalate rather than neutralize conflicts

Unfortunately the list goes on and on…

Today we know conclusively that many of these activities are being facilitated by politically and financially powerful individuals, government, and corporate organizations who perennially avoid being brought to account for their actions due to their affluence and influence.

There is an extensive back-story behind this tribunal and its purpose. To summarize as succinctly as possible: many legal scholars, researchers, and activists who make up the ITNJ's body of volunteers have discovered conclusively that the courts in America, as well as the rest of the world, are actually for-profit corporations masquerading as legitimate representational bodies. Not only that, but most of the world's countries are themselves corporations masquerading as governments too.

In America, Title 28 of the U.S. Code §3002(15a) defines the 'United States' as a 'federal corporation!' Furthermore, these corporations are actively engaged in a war against the people today, which was discovered by 2,000 researchers who followed a gun case in D.C. that exposed deep currents of corruption running through the 'justice' systems of the world. A more extensive view on this can be found at the official website for the Committee to Support the ITNJ www.itnjcommittee.org.

When one realizes that the various 'governments' of the world do not truthfully represent the living people of the living soil, but in actuality merely pretend to represent the people, then one begins to understand why it is that so many 'leaders' and corporate directors appear to be so incompetent and rapacious. When one observes how the legal system has been co-opted to become nothing more than an 'enforcement arm' of the banking sector – which has been used as a weapon to artificially usurp the very time and energy of people across the globe – one can begin to perceive what is happening in our world.

Poverty, war, slavery, and even pollution are not inevitable – these things are merely symptoms of a status quo that derives its 'authority' through fraud, threat, coercion, and manipulation.

We cannot expect systems to change themselves without a sufficient amount of enlightened public participation. We cannot superficially inch and wrangle our way towards 'civilization' through coercion and conflict – nor can we establish a peaceful and harmonious world strictly through our current manner of funding or voting. We will only get there through expanding our consciousness, and thereby our capacity to interrelate and cooperate. Unscrupulous public officials, predatory corporations, and warmongering leaders need to stand down, and one very important step toward making this happen is for the people themselves to convene a tribunal to lawfully hold perpetrators accountable, be they petty tyrants hiding behind officialdom, or corporation/governments themselves acting in breach of natural law.

'Natural Justice'= the Golden Rule in action.

The singularity of Natural Law is:

Do no harm, loss, or injury to another living soul, and conduct no fraud in your transactions

When anyone anywhere has had their right to a peaceful existence stolen from them through immoral coercion of any kind, it is an affront against all human beings, and it becomes immediately incumbent upon the community to fix the problem. This is the true and original purpose of any honest and valid court/judicial system: to assist the greater community in the preservation of our rights and life.

Any institution that deliberately pursues differing or contrary aims cannot be rightly considered a true source of Law!

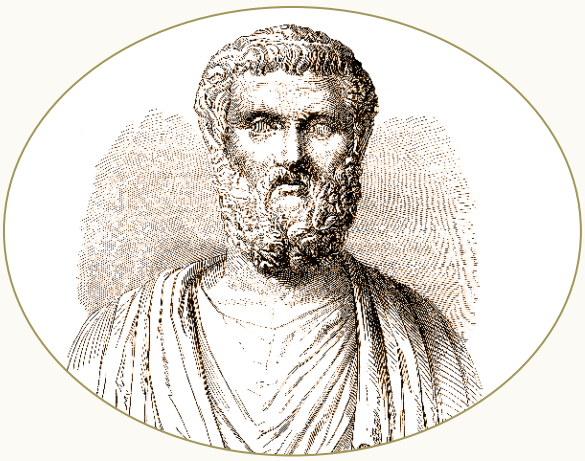

This is why the ITNJ was officially established and announced to the world on Feb. 14, 2015. It is a valid court of the people, and it is here to set a basic precedent: that the rights of the people to a sustainable and peaceful life, and the community, resources, knowledge, and wisdom necessary to maintain such an existence, are more important than the 'rights' of corporate/legal-fictions to do whatever they want regardless of how their actions affect the living world and humanity.

We invite the world to participate via filmed media and live streaming, ergo: a feature of this court is that we will be using the principles of e-governance/blockchain to allow the public to be a voice within this court.

To read more about this endeavour, please visit itnj.org. You can refer to our Constitution and Treaty under the 'ITNJ' drop-down menu. For more information, research, and to learn about how to participate/volunteer, visit www.itnjcommittee.org.

We are reaching out to the people of the world for support. The more who sign the ITNJ Treaty, and the more crowdfunding we can sustain, the more effective and beneficial to the world this court will become.

After all, this Treaty is for everyone.

Society is well governed when its people obey the magistrates, and the magistrates obey the law.

AN OPEN LETTER

Sir John Walsh of Brannagh

CHIEF JUSTICE TO THE INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

After three full days of hearings at Westminster, the Judicial Commission of Inquiry concluded its first open hearings into Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse. Witnesses came from all corners of the globe indicating that the International Tribunal for Natural Justice is fulfilling its international and worldwide remit. Witnesses came from the Americas, from Europe, from Africa, from Australasia, from Asia, and from the United Kingdom. If there was ever any doubt in the public's mind as to the extent of human trafficking, organ harvesting, child kidnapping, and perverted sexual predation, this was quickly dispelled the first day, and as the witnesses came forward and told their story it became fundamentally clear that there was a real and urgent need for the I.T.N.J. and its Judicial Commission. As witness after witness told of trafficking in children, of repeated and perverted rapes being followed by death sacrifice, of organ removal from live prisoners, of the repeated governmental cover-ups and threats to law enforcement officials and others, it became abundantly clear that the I.T.N.J. had a mission to fulfill... and it will.

Some may ask why. Is this not a government responsibility? Well here government has failed miserably. Government is not the answer. It is often the problem. What the Judicial Commission seeks to do is to remind every government and law enforcement in very clear terms that there is a problem and where the problem is. The world was not made only for the rich and powerful but also for the weak, the poor, the voiceless. The I.T.N.J. will speak for the 99% and demand that the 1%, which allows these practices, change its mindset and take action to rid the world of human trafficking, child slavery, child rape, organ harvesting, and the ritual exploitation and killing of the innocent.

We have not finished: the court was adjourned and there will be more open hearings before a final report is released to every country and every government and the United Nations setting out clearly our findings and demanding positive action. Already only a week after we adjourned the Australian Government announced a new and better surveillance system to investigate and destroy pedophile rings. The President of the United States has already stated his government's mission against human trafficking and its attendant evils.

The Judicial Commission has issued a rally cry to the world to support, develop, and protect our sacred mission. As is stated in our Constitution "Let this message go forth from this time and place to all the peoples of the world that to right the wrongs done to them and in vindication of their rights and the enforcement of just causes and to hold accountable those responsible for breaches of human rights it is proclaimed that the International Tribunal for Natural Justice is established pursuant to this Constitution." We have lit the torch. Help us carry it into the darkness in the world.

The Michelle Young case was a special hearing adjunct to the Commission of Inquiry. This ongoing case demonstrates how Court systems in the United Kingdom use fraudulent means to asset strip both individuals and companies of their wealth. Falsified documents are being submitted to the Courts through Registrar's offices in order to (falsely) prove legitimacy prior to the Court utilizing such instruments for the purpose of forcing bankruptcies. The findings of the Michelle Young case are being made available to the Press and Public in the expectation that this disclosure will stem the flow of apparent corruption and collusion taking place across the United Kingdom, destroying the lives and livelihoods of countless souls whilst compromising the Government and Crown in the process.

THE ITNJ: NATURAL JUSTICE UNCHAINED

Article by Justice Dr. Christopher John Cleverly

The mission of the ITNJ is clearly stated: A world in which the Earth is honoured; Truth is spoken; Love is the basis of all action; and Justice is an organic, self-fulfilling function of respect for natural law.

Honour. Truth. Love. Simple words that should describe all our interactions. Honour thy mother. Truth will set you free. Love thy neighbour. To achieve this mission we must construct a pathway that can lead humanity to these goals, not down to the lowest common denominator but high to that which is our own personal sovereign.

The definition of the International Tribunal of Natural Justice, is clear within its words – what it says on the tin is what it is! It is without borders, a system of adjudication to enshrine the right of all things to Natural Justice.

SO WHAT IS 'NATURAL JUSTICE'?

Historically, it has been inadequately defined as simply the rule against bias and the right to a fair hearing. Although laudable aims, these have never been the whole story viz Natural Justice but rather merely procedural pre-conditions which may facilitate one to experience Natural Justice in the face of an unnatural wrong. The words 'Natural' and 'Justice' are not terms of art, they mean having done to you that which is your inalienable right.

This mission therefore has a goal of what Zulus call, Ubuntu. This is variously defined as 'I am because we are' or 'the belief in a universal bond of sharing that connects all humanity.' It is defined by the Golden Rule, a maxim found in many religions and cultures. Sometimes defined as 'to do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' And there is no reason why this cannot be extended to all sentience: do not pigs cry when their piglets are taken from them.

It is with this definition as our totem for our tribunal that we have sought a way to Natural Justice that is decentralized and not dictatorial, that intends to be authoritative but not the authority. Has there ever been a civilization where more law resulted in more justice? So with this in mind, we have sought these steps as a new type of judicial remedy, the ITNJ and which is proposed in this review.

WHAT IS A DECENTRALIZED COURT

Its not about taking humans (and humanity) out of the process with an algorithm swallowing our finest instincts and spitting them out in binary. But rather about putting the greatest amount of humanity into the process and democratizing what has been for a long time (at least in the Anglo Saxon system) an aggressive adversarial system where Might has been equated with Right and in other Western systems which have aimed to pursue truth through inquiry but where the lack of jeopardy in the process has created an open door for corruption.

Critics of the concept of decentralized courts have complained that without a State there can be no enforcement to ensure restitution of damage or punishment of wrongdoers. These views are largely a reflection of the modern dream which propagates the myth that the State is immanent, omniscient and permanent. It is not. In every sense, it is transient. If there is any force in the State at all, it is at the will

(and more normally the acquiescence) of the people. It is Humanity that gives the State its existence, it is Humanity that acknowledges the State its powers, and it is Humanity that can discern whether the State has failed or succeeded. And ultimately, since the State is just our chosen concept, we can by the will of Humanity's consensus – also simply will the State away.

Therefore, it is to that fundament, humanity in its diversity, in its unformed condition, that we, the people, can look to justice. And a global, informed consensus facilitated not trammelled, by either Artificial intelligence or deep learning algorithms will become the arbiter of our justice; disintermediating the inefficiency of our antiquated judicial systems and setting us free of the inherent corruption and jeopardy of a system of Judge qua God.

Enforcement will come through community and share activism against the great countries, through consumer sanctions not selected by the state but by us as great groups of people, by the withdrawal of our common support. These have long been the tactics of collective groups and are highly effective. We can also force our still existing State apparatus to enforce against the wrongdoers, the success of petitioning has shown this. Gandhi was not a State, yet he brought down an Empire.

The big issue is how do we avoid mob rule – or the primitive excesses of human passion that can get stirred by demagogic advocacy and lead to the dehumanization of the liberties of others in the spurious pursuit of 'the greater good.' But this downward route is a road blocked off and impossible in the face of Natural Justice, for Natural Justice essentially boils down to the Golden Rule – 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' The Golden Rule functions as a procedural standard for judging the moral legitimacy of courses of conduct and as the only constitution does not harbour the wind of ill-will. Nor can it be curtailed; injustice to one of us, is an injustice to all of us.

Note to that the Golden Rule is a positive rule, it is not of the 'Thou Shalt not…' patriarchal variety that has hitherto dominated the global legal systems. A positive statement that requires our mutual action propagates the evolutionary rather than the status quo. It takes us to our better selves.

Because Natural Justice as defined by the Golden Rule is language based, structured by words commonly defined, it is inherently a decentralized infrastructure. It does not need codification by a centralized authority. Even if all the dictionaries in the world were erased, the meaning would still be clear and two strangers could meet and they would still largely agree upon what the other was trying to say. This form of decentralization is observable whether approached from a social, political or logical perspective.

Decentralization is important because it resists 'hijacking' by small interest groups or elites, which are inclined to act in support of their own, often short-term needs, to the disbenefit of humanity and the universal ecosystem. It achieves this by exponentially increasing and randomizing the number of functional nodes where key decision-making activity occurs. This makes both hacking and collusion to defeat the purpose of the autonomous organization uneconomical and physically harder to make happen. A by-product of this decentralization is that like biodiverse systems, extinction becomes more difficult. It is easier to cut of the head of a snake than a hydra's heads, and harder still a generation of snakes hidden in a jungle. A by-product of the internet is that it gives the formerly silenced a voice.

SO HOW DO WE DO IT

In 2017 the ITNJ Board of Trustees determined that the most impactful direction for the ITNJ was to focus on creating its inaugural Judicial Commission of Inquiry into Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse, and thereby began appointing justices and commissioners to champion this noble endeavor. However, the ITNJ does not 'own' the justice, it is the community that this decentralized structure is to the benefit of that has sovereignty over that domain. It is expected that with progress the structure itself will become little more than a fabric for the benefit of communication in that community (humanity) instead of a set of legislative rules over them. Just as how, in a common language, we may learn sentence construction or punctuation so that we may communicate, but sentence construction itself does not own language or 'own' its usage, it is merely a means to an end.

In this way, the process of the ITNJ, a big organism, owns nothing save for the benefit of the Community, and where it has utility or effectiveness, is not for 'everyday' disputes but rather for those that are either supported by significant petitioning or for crowdfunding enterprise, or which have been deemed as creating landmark decisions or that have been clearly and heinously ignored, or have not been susceptible to the processes of the centralized court systems despite their public importance.

Only once the justices and commissioners have agreed after listening to evidence of live witnesses, experts, read testimony and seen video evidence and heard advocacy (all filmed and transmitted live to an open network audience) and once it is established that this is of public and international importance to the survival and/or development of all sentient souls in the light of the Golden Rule, then, and then only, does the ITNJ truly awaken…

Historically, the ambitions of the ITNJ would have had to have been more limited. What has allowed this transformation to occur is the blockchain: a digitized, decentralized public ledger, which records through smart contracts, our decisions, agreements and relationships. In many cases it does this by agreeing a value to that exchange or dialogue in the form of a digital currency called cryptocurrency or tokenization. This currency or token can be used to incentivize the exchange in a positive way – either by punishing bad behaviour or by rewarding good.

Vitalik Buterin, the father of the Ethereum blockchain, and its prophet, proposed the following on the decentralized court:

> "One crypto-institution that would be very useful for a large set of different applications is a mechanism by which a user could ask a question, expressed in the form of English text, and have a decentralized mechanism, perhaps based on schellingcoin, Martin Koppelmann's ultimate oracle, subjectivocracy (a very similar concept to slock's DAO splitting) or some other scheme with similar properties determine the answer, and then send a callback and a log to the user who asked the question. To achieve scalability, a multi-stage scheme where only a few randomly selected judges look at each question by default, and are incentivized by the threat of a larger 'supreme court' contradicting them, is probably optimal."

For decentralization to work in this context it must solve four issues: decentralization of public blockchain design; decentralization of evidence gathering, decentralization of decision making, decentralization of enforcement.

The blockchain development and design must be as much as possible decentralized, which is why we will need to develop our own system (or modify to our own ends a system) based on incentivizing actors through distribution of tokens or coins. A diverse and unrelated support group of developers must be brought together and motivated. A proof of stake model of public blockchain development is therefore mooted by which a set of validators take turns proposing and voting on the next block, and the weight of each validator's vote depends on the size of its deposit (i.e. stake). Suggested methodology here is that receipt of compensatory stake is a product of work done and validated, and that validation is a result of a random selection of 25% of available validators and an affirmation of proposed block by 51% of them. Note that speed of consensus in the decision making process is not as key here as in purely transactional blockchains but it can be speeded up by basic probability algorithms, e.g. Las Vegas, where laws of likelihood can apply. It would also be of benefit that selected validators for a previous block are disqualified from participating in the next round of block validation.

The greatest risk in these systems is that validators are of a limited class and as such are at risk of coordinating their activities. However, as the users in a natural justice blockchain are potentially a very big number, i.e. the number of humanity itself, a development and validation process that includes the users can ensure that a 'swing vote' by users reduces a monopoly of 'validator power' emerging. Development in this direction is urged.

The issuance of a native token, Natural Justice coin ('JUST coins') will be for the incentivization and benefit of developers and validators of the development. But as a utility coin they will also be issued to: participants/users, those that provide computing power, those that gather and submit evidence, those that validate that evidence, those that theorize what the evidence may mean, those that decide upon that evidence's probity and weight on the query in hand, those that develop enforcement methods through crowdfunding and marketing of crowdfunding, by petitioning, by communicating tribunal updates and outcomes.

I propose that the coin be tradeable, so as to enable the greatest incentivization. It will also provide discounts where relevant activities, goods, services arise which the community deems as having a monetary value. The number of coins granted to participants could be, inter alia, a product of the number of validations received as well successful points, decisions made.

Certain rules to ensure fairplay will need to be discovered and agreed such as those participants that develop the blockchain can not vote on its processes but may gain further by participating in crowdfunding and marketing of crowdfunding, etc.

Honesty is to be encouraged as not all evidence submitted by participants will be corroborative and some evidence may be accepted whilst others rejected. Only that evidence which is successful, fit the truth pattern algorithms and those decisions that may have majority support will receive JUST coins. Ideally, encryption will prevent hacking of the identities of participants, evidence providers, advocates and jurors. Professional participants will be encouraged.

Decentralization of evidence gathering and opensource of material gathered is key. This requires a multi-layer secure data management system and selective peer review of sensitive material. The greatest danger is that a system with one administrator may well defeat our purpose, hence the need for immutable and large scale validation. This will require the ability to close down nodes and correction or temporary holding in abeyance of unbalanced or inconclusive nodes without disturbing the overall health of the evidence gathering 'chains.' Evidence, where applicable, will be supported by affidavits of truth.

Decentralization of decision making and other validation in the system can be further advanced by prediction based algorithms. Not all the evidence needed may be discoverable but it may be possible to discern it through logic. Adding this AI element, allows potentially a second hand alongside participant validation by voting and can be used to reduce the possibility of human collusion. Further checks can be provided by anonymous deep learning analysis of participant's activity and group patterns – checking that votes are not being combined by monopolists or hackers. Obviously the greater the numbers of participants the greater the reduction of this as a possibility. Alibaba resolves disputes by using nearly a million potential 'jury' members who are randomly selected and rendered 150 million decisions in March 2016. They are incentivized with enhanced credit rating for use on the Alibaba site.

Also AI analysis allows the community to analyze the consistency of a narrative. Most activity is cause and effect and so largely predictable. Accordingly, where a significant inconsistency to a pattern of activity occurs or a repetition of inconsistencies occur, these would tend to suggest that a just outcome is unlikely, i.e. with reasonable doubt and, in such circumstances, we should attend to the principle of innocent till proven guilty in the name of Natural Justice.

Initially positioned as a 'name and shame' institution, the growth of crowd-based initiatives can now enable the ITNJ to enforce its conclusions. The power of marketing 'wrong doing' through the alternative press networks, as well as petitioning existing legislative infrastructure and existing press networks has increasingly become a powerful tool for change. The use of consumer and decentralized network sanctions refusing to buy certain products or refusing perform assumed activity can weaken and bring down the most powerful state regimes and multinational corporations. The ITNJ also intends to crowdfund for share purchase to enable a voice in corporate decision making where those corporations are acting in a significant way against natural justice. Such peaceful demonstration is the highest form of activist change; clearly, justice unenforced is not justice.

In this way, once a decision is made and the participants have decided that action is necessary, they will be asked to act against the interests of the wrongdoers to enable them to see the error of their ways and cease their inhumane activity. This will be effective and as it is a decentralized approach, it will not be one that is susceptible to 'shut down' by the wrong doer.

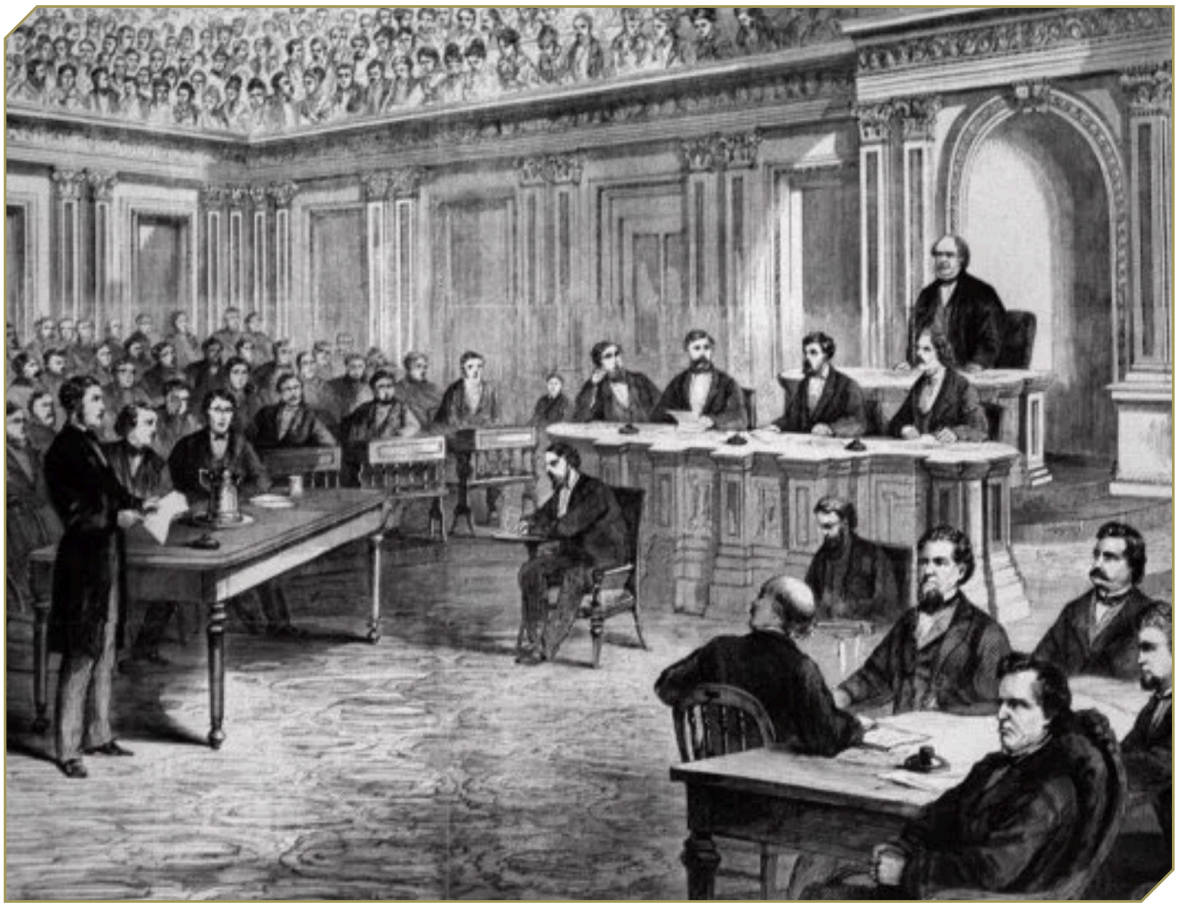

But we should also look at how provision of coins can incentivize good behaviour. Positive activities that enable a more just existence, or educate others (for ignorance is the enemy of justice) to seek a more just existence for all, should be encouraged. In the parable of the Good Samaritan, the good Samaritan gave two denarii to the innkeeper who would keep his wounded charge, in our example, an ITNJ Foundation would reward not just the innkeeper but the good Samaritan with coin. Further, it would reward a corporation that turned around an unfair policy or a slaver that turned whistleblower or a polluter that remediated his waste. And most of all it would err on the side of Justice's fair sister Mercy, for what fidelity is greater than that we treat others as we would like to be treated.

This principle of rewarding others for that good behaviour which creates a more just world, could become the bedrock of the universal basic wage system that many see as a likely future response to global automation. A fair wage underpinned by a JUST coin. Our futures need not be dystopian.

CONCLUSION

The path that ITNJ has embarked upon is well trodden by those who have been stopped in their tracks by the insurmountable and often incomprehensible mountains of anger and the treacherous depths of hatred that they have found in their way. It is hoped that it will be different for us as a decentralized movement, led by what is integral to all of us. We pray that despite the inevitable criticism that all agencies of change face, that the ITNJ provides good service, such as to inspire each who hears of it, to carry on this mantle: for we are never lessened by seeking justice for all and we might just find something more ourselves.

OPENING STATEMENT FROM

Dr. Cynthia McKinney

COMMISSIONER TO THE INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

Honorable Justices, Your Grace, and my fellow Commissioners of the ITNJ,

When I confronted former U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld in congress about whether or not it was government policy to reward corporations like DynCorp for the sex trafficking, it was intended to throw light on the very narrative which the Commission of Inquiry is now enacting.

I am encouraged to see that the subject is now becoming known to the world at large and that in our generation we can, and will, route this evil from our civilizational wheel. The horror of these atrocities, and the suffering of millions of souls, is made all the worse by systemic collusion of factions within trusted institutions, government agencies, child care services, social services, and even churches around the globe. The scale of human trafficking and child abuse must surely be the most untold story of our civilization. 25 million souls every year, 8 million of them are children.

Billions upon billions of dollars are being generated. Being generated by whom? The travesty is that we, more or less, know the answers, and certainly are able to determine those answers with little effort. But that effort is not being undertaken. It is not being undertaken by the very agencies and institutions that are mandated to protect and serve good people of the world. In villages, in towns, in cities across our globe.

Some of my fellow Commissioners within this Judicial Commission of Inquiry are world leading experts in statistical analysis of tracking and of identifying remedy to these seminal concerns. As this Commission of Inquiry unfolds, we will make known to the world the sheer scale of human trafficking and child sex abuse. We will not balk from this duty of care, and we will be joined by millions of people the world over, concerned citizens, concerned mothers, fathers, sisters, and brothers alike.

I look forward to presiding at the commission seating in the United States in the months ahead, and wish my colleagues every success with this three day seating in Westminster, London.

Thank you very much, and may God bless us all.

Witness Testimony

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM DAVID SEAMAN

Testified on April 17, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. via video link regarding Pizzagate and the obstruction by mainstream media

DAVID SEAMAN, founder of Fulcrum News, is an American research journalist fired from the Huffington Post for his ground-breaking story on Pizzagate. His continued commitment to advocate for civil liberties is a benchmark for journalism.

"Thank you for having me and thanks for making this a focus. Of course even the White House has published an executive order going into how widespread human trafficking is, what an epidemic it is, and there was just an article in the New York Post about how this is happening right under the people's noses on a scale that is frankly hard to fathom...

The CIA had pledged at one time to deceive all of us as to the real state of the world, and then the Podesta emails come out in the days before the US election in late 2016, these emails just come seemingly out of nowhere... and we only had a few days to pour through them, those of us in the research community with the group of researchers that became Fulcrum news, we only had a few days to pour through this stuff. And it wasn't just me and my team, but I was seemingly one of the only people in the US who were behind some kind of media bubble, or some kind of media blockade, that did not want to talk about the content of Podesta's emails at all. They did not want to talk about his emails, and I was just drawing simple conclusions about the content of those emails.

Anybody in order of magnitude more busy than the average journalist or the average professional, if they're using a code language in their emails, there's always a reason why. That's just simple research work 101. If somebody is a very busy person and their day job is organizing the presidential campaign for Hillary Clinton, if they're using a code language in their spare time there's got to be a reason why. And so we just followed the path of least resistance, really, besides the trolling and the character attacks from the Media Matters type of people, aside from that we just followed the path of least resistance, and we just followed Occam's razor as researchers...

And again, we were behind some kind of blockade. I mean Europe knew this stuff was not only possible it's par for the course, like Jimmy Savile and the BBC having kind of covered up for him, and even the Royal Family having given him a degree of legitimacy he should not have had. So Europe was open to this pedophilia stuff and the fact that it exists, unfortunately, that child abuse is wide spread at the top levels of society, the catholic church and other predominantly other European scandal.

Europe knows it exists, Asia, I think by default, knows the word is a very corrupt place, and in the US we've been living behind some kind of Alice in Wonderland facade, like we're living in a Norman Rockwell painting, and no, we're living in like the opening scene of the move, 'Taken,' with Liam Neeson, so it's very, very interesting that this has blown open again. Even the New York Post talking about how it's an epidemic...

Just broadly I would have to say that what emerged is that the ruling families connected to the banking system, again, I'm just giving the broad strokes here, there are people on your commission who are more expert in this area and have worked in some of these intelligence agencies that were responsible for doing this, and they probably have much more to say on it than I do. But just broadly, there were these ruling families due to their roles within the banking system, and within the oil industry to a certain extent, they became wealthy over a short period of time, compound interest, as it turns out, is one of the wonders of the world when you're one of the ruling banking families.

You can make so much money within a couple generations, and things go in a very sinister direction where they kind of co-opted these cults that had existed for a very long time. A cable network in the US, AHC, which is owned by Discovery Networks, which owns the Discovery Channel and many other content providers in the US, AHC aired an hour long special called, 'Inside the cult of Satan,' about how this pre-biblical cult of which child abuse and human sacrifice is simply a part of what they do, and has been operating underground for centuries, and more recently has kind of peaked it's head up in the form of institutionalized human trafficking and political leads being compromised by this stuff.

So to get back to what I was saying, the broad stroke here, I think it that these banking families, in collusion with these intelligence agencies, I don't quite know how this happened, began brownstoning or pedofying a number of elected leaders, either selecting for leaders who are already perverts and deviants, selecting them because they can be compromised easily, and then giving them the money and resources to seek national office. Or in some cases just using that as a blackmail component, you know, if you want to get access to this stuff, then you have to become a member of the club, and this is how we control you. And so this is used as a means of control, because we live in a post modern age where just photographing somebody smoking a joint or photographing somebody engaged in extramarital sex is not what it was in the 1960s.

Nobody cares, so they had to go much deeper down the rabbit hole of human depravity, and as a result, as the wikileaks emails showed, we have US political leads in their spare time, for whatever reason, are using a language that's known to federal law enforcement to be used by child traffickers. And we do know there are occult connections, Spirit Cooking is being done by many US celebrities, it's overtly occult, it's overtly satanic. So that's really the broad strokes of what our research has popularized, with the help of many others.

I think, pretty much, as Pizzagate goes out wider and wider that the whole mainstream media is done. I mean, you have Comedy Central mocking it as fake news, you have the CBS evening comedy host Steven Colbert mocking it as dangerous fake news, you have the New York Times and the Washington Post both receive Pulitzers just recently... they both receive Pulitzer Prizes for their 'work' 'unearthing' the Russian collusion story, which by the way if it were 100% true it's not even a felony...Not a felony they were investigating, and they award them Pulitzers... Meanwhile Pizzagate bubbles-up thanks to internet researchers, thanks to the decentralized nature of internet media, Pizzagate keeps bubbling up and they keep trying to suppress it at the New York Times and the Washington Post and places like Buzzfeed and Newsweek, so I think all those brands are pretty much done. As this goes viral, it's like they tried to cover up Watergate, they are not going to have a future.

I think we're at a point right now where the internet censorship from the big three or four social media pipelines are so bad, if you mention topics like Pizzagate, you're liable to get a temporary ban..."

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM JAY PARKER

Testified on April 17, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. via video link regarding the MK Ultra program and Ritualistic Satanic Abuse

JAY PARKER was born into a multigenerational satanic/illuminati family receiving Monarch base mind control and subjected to childhood satanic ritual abuse. He now speaks on recovery and satanic ritual abuse specialized holistic healing approaches.

"I think if we are going to change this world we are going to have to change the way people perceive it. I grew-up in a multigenerational family in Arden, DE, in the United States. My parents were generational illuminate. My father was 10th generation illuminate. They joined the cult in the 1720s. What I'd really like to talk about more than just the cult are healing modalities, and that my Mother told me in 1963 basically that the world is based on collective consciousness, and if we understand anything about consciousness and we're all in it together in the subconscious, and we have to clean up our subconscious because we get a solipsistic, shall I say satanistic like, brainwashing the first six years of life when in the programmable state.

The programmable state is the most important message I have personally to give everyone on this planet. You think your conscious mind is running your life but it's actually the 40 million bits of information that go into the morphogenic field every second that runs your life from your subconscious. Your conscience mind only donates 5, maybe 4 million bits of information to the morphogenic field. 95% of the morphogenic field's information is coming from the subconscious, and your subconscious was given to you by your culture, it's not something you decided on.

The work of Dr. Bruce Lipton and Dr. Joe Dispenza are indispensable for understanding exactly how this world works. The illuminate know this, and what they do, through trauma based mind control and soft mind control, is control the perception of humanity. That's why they control academia, that's why they control the media, that's why they control Hollywood. It's all about getting your perception inline with their desires, and we have to come to a place where we change the paradigm by changing ourselves and what we'll put up with in this world.

The 'go along, get along' attitude you get in the programmable state from the illuminate ruled world is keep your head down, don't make waves, don't ask questions, and we have to totally look at ourselves and say, "Why am I putting up with this? Why am I allowing 800 thousand to disappear in America every year and not say a word? Why am I allowing 17 million people to die of cancer when cannabis oil, Rick Simpson oil, has a 95% cancer cure rate?" We have to look at ourselves as allowing this to happen...

... we all get our enculturation in the programmable state (from 1 to 6 years old) when we only have two brain wave patterns and our subconscious is being built. This programmable state is the difference between walking in love or walking in a solipsistic mentation. If you have a solipsistic mentation you don't care about anyone but yourself. This is what's being programmed into everyone through the mass media and through the culture, and we have to change the culture, we have to change the message that's getting to people every day. That's our job, to shine a light on reality.

...When you have a society where 800 thousand children are disappearing a year here in America, and it's not even in the media, it's not discussed at all except amongst people who are researching child trafficking and the horrific abuse that's going on from this dark occult, can I say that we are in an insane position here?... 17 1/2 million people dying of cancer because the cure is banned by the corrupt pharmaceutical companies controlling the governments. This is genocide, and yet we are putting up with it. Why are we putting up with it?...

... We have a situation where all the banking, all the academics, everything is under their control, and when the web came in that was truly the apocalypse, which is the removing of a cover, and now there are millions of people worldwide who are awoken to the truth that things aren't what television is saying they are. And the more people that wake up to the truth, the more people then find it easier to wake up to the truth. It's a snowball effect due to the fact that we are in a collective consciousness paradigm here.

When one person wakes up and starts broadcasting into the field a different message of reality and perception then it makes it easier for someone else because we are energetic magnetism beings, so that when we send out a particular vibration, if that vibration is picked up by other people, then there's two, and three, and four, and so on and so forth, and that wave, that vibration gets stronger and stronger in the field, and that's what we are seeing right now, is a rise in consciousness due to some extraterrestrial effects like the photonic belt, and the fact that we're in the Mayan 5th age, the 5th sun, the earth's history is all about cycles of building and creation and devastation and we're going into a cycle of creation and love and care. We're coming out of the Kali Yuga, which is just a horrible time, it's really the iron age, and what we need to do more than anything is continue to work together and understand our physiology and spirituality and our consciousness.

If we teach things like EFT, and if we show people they can reprogram their subconscious, they can destroy old bad habit patterns, and they can also broadcast into the field a different signal than the one that society gave them. I talk about this on my radio show all the time. That we need to clean up the inside of each individual, and we need to also get involved and actually care for one another and not put up with the nonsense of the psychopathic elite. They all go through, whether your a Rockefeller or a Dupont, they all go through six or seven years of torture, rape, and ritualistic abuse, featuring blood sacrifice, featuring drugging, featuring interdimensional beings in their presence, just the worst kind of life that anyone can imagine...

... All I have to say is we can change this because they are few and we are many. And if we tell people, "Don't be afraid and stand up for what's right," we can change this. It's simply a matter of numbers. The more people we wake up to the fact that they need to care and they need to get involved, the more energy goes into the morphogenic field and the channel gets literally changed to a new movie, to a new broadcast. One of cooperation, not destruction, and this is my whole bag now, is don't talk so much about the illuminate any more, as I tell people learn about yourself, learn about self empowerment, learn about natural law, and get involved. Find a small piece of problem that fits your personality and make that your cause..."

AN OPEN LETTER

Robert David Steele

CHIEF COUNSEL FOR THE INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

As a parent and as a patriot I have been outraged for some time by the clear and present danger to society of pedopredation (pedophilia or paedophilia). I recognize now that child torture, child murder, and child organ harvesting is an 'accepted' practice at the highest levels of government, the NGO and multinational corporate sector, as well as throughout academic institutions and civil society. This scourge persists because it is allowed to exist by the complicit authorities.

As a former spy and pioneer for Open Source Intelligence (OSINT) I have worked with INTERPOL, EUROPOL, Scotland Yard, the FBI, and the national intelligence and law enforcement services or their representatives from over 66 countries. What I have found, without exception, is that they are all staffed by good people trapped in bad systems – systems that are not allowed to properly address this scourge – the multi-generational crime against humanity known as pedophilia.

Pedophilia – a 'love for children' – is not an accurate term. There is no love for children manifest in any aspect of child slavery, sexual abuse, torture, murder, or body harvesting. For this reason the inaugural seating of the Commission of Inquiry into Human Trafficking & Child Sex Abuse, at the behest of ITNJ Commissioner Carine Hutsebaut (a criminologist and psychotherapist) the term 'Pedopredation,' has been designated as a more appropriate term, along with the term 'pedosexual,' for that considerable sub-set abuses of children outside the Satanic ritual network. It is vital to note that many organizations that started out with the best of intentions – from the Boy Scouts to the day care centers to United Nations assistance and development groups to Oxfam as the most recent example – appear to have been infiltrated by pedopredators. By virtue of being in daily contact with the most vulnerable members of society, our children, many of the mandated organizations have, over time, attracted numerous pedopredators to their ranks, and been compromised by their lack of proper vetting processes, as well as also turning a deliberate blind eye to the transgressions of staff.

This need not be so if governments were honest and counterintelligence were to be exercised. It appears to be a matter of policy at the highest levels of global leadership to turn a blind eye to pedopredation and pedosexuality. It appears that pedopredation – including the attendant torture and murder of infants to produce adrenalized blood via ritual Satanic abuse – is in some cases considered an elite 'privilege' whereupon these echelons are permitted to practice such perversity with impunity.

There are two additional causes for alarm. First, there appears to be a deliberate campaign by the elite to infect local, state (province) and national police, prosecutors, and judges – from Australia to Zimbabwe – with a 'taste' for pedosexuality. It is used as both an initiation rite into the Deep State and Shadow Government, and as a basis for blackmail. Worse, we are now seeing two terrible trends: one toward abusing and murdering children before they learn to speak (they cannot bear witness); and the other, perhaps brought back by US forces from Afghanistan, the combination of war dogs and toddlers in a devastating combination of child rape and bestiality – dogs raping children for videos to be sold. Add to this the growing market in fetuses, the most prized being those delivered on the floor as part of a Satanic ritual, and one has an inkling of the greatest evil on the planet.

Second, it has become clear from our early inquiries with ample documentation, that both the family courts and the insolvency courts are being used to strip children from families to convert the children into a commodity that can be sold for cash, and are also being used to strip assets from wealthy individuals who are not part of the Deep State network. Governments are complicit in child and asset stripping, which would not occur if registrars, lawyers (barristers), and judges were held accountable. False claims and documents abound, and in their tolerated existence, challenge the legitimacy of the government.

ENOUGH! The purpose of the Commission is to do what has not been done before: to document the actual totality of missing children each year (preliminary estimates yet to be documented are eight million a year, or 22,000 a day); and also to document what happens to these children once they are ingested into the local to global pedopredation network of networks. The average lifespan of a child once in the pedopredation (pedophilia or paedophilia) system is estimated by some to be two years — those being groomed for 'leadership' roles that perpetuate pedosexuality at all levels live much longer.

This is a comprehensive non-profit educational endeavor in the public interest that will cost at least USD $3 million. Raising this amount will ensure the requisite combination of publicity including judicial hearings in key countries attracting new witnesses; automated and human expert processing to collate thousands of existing and known survivors and prisoners; innovative research including Dark Web de-anonymization and Thin Thread database sense-making; and public-education via the world's first comprehensive online library focused on human trafficking, modern slavery and pedopredation including pedosexuality.

The Commission has nurtured one book offered free online: Pedophilia & Empire: Satan, Sodomy, & The Deep State. That book and videos of the author speaking to this scourge, can be found at http://tinyurl.com/pedoempire. Several additional books, and a multitude of short video documentaries, are planned, as well as a broad online reference library. Pedopredation including pedosexuality – improperly labeled pedophilia or paedophilia – is the Achilles' heel of the Deep State and Shadow Government. The same high-ranking police officers, judges, politicians, and bankers are responsible for enabling pedopredation and pedosexuality, and financial asset stripping. Their names are known – their story has yet to be told in an honest compelling manner. Pedopredation, including pedosexuality, is the heart of the darkness that is the essence of Western banking and Western politics.

I am quite certain that if the public is now ready to fund such an enterprise we will be successful, and in being successful we will draw the line in the sand toward the protection of all children everywhere far into the future. Enough!

Witness Testimony

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM HON. DAVID KILGOUR

Testified on April 17, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. regarding the Falun Gong and forced organ harvesting programs in China

HON. DAVID KILGORE is a former Canadian Secretary of State and author who is devoted to ending human trafficking, and in particular, exposing the scourge of Falun Gong persecution.

"It is estimated today that there are more slaves than any time in human history, as I think we all heard yesterday. People say why? It's a lack of general awareness, it's poor data, it's insufficient legal systems. Most absent of all is a coordinated international campaign, responsible national governments worldwide need to act together on this terrible issue with the unified purpose.

...there's a related scourge of organ pillaging, which we're speaking to today, it's been going on for about 20 years. In mid 2006 the coalition to investigate the persecution of Falun Gong practitioners asked David Mavis and I to investigate it. We both went in to it with open minds, we were both hoping it wasn't going to be true, but we very quickly discovered that it was true, and there's been referenced to fifty kinds of evidence. I was a prosecutor for 10 years so I should know something about evidence, and we came-up with a report, a revised report, and then a book we called, 'Bloody Harvest,' and we've continued to investigate ever since.

We concluded that for 41,500 (transplants) done, in the years 2000 to 2005 in China, the only reasonable explanation for the resourcing was the Falun Gong. Here are just two kinds of the 18 kinds of substantive evidence we found, we had people calling to institutions across China, hospitals, prisons, and so on, mostly hospitals, asking if they had Falun Gong organs available. Falun Gong practitioners don't smoke or drink, they are very healthy, and that's the reason people wanted Falun Gong organs.

We discovered that, and it was mentioned in the film, that ONLY the Falun Gong were examined by doctors coming into these forced labor camps, and of course they wondered, "Why are you examining me while you are torturing me to give up my Falun Gong beliefs?"

The way it works... is when somebody arrives at Shanghai, Shanghai is where most people go from Europe, they are blood tested and so on, and then they go out on the computer and they find a match for somebody through this testing of Falun Gong, and they go out to the camp and they grab the poor man or woman and give them potassium, now it appears, and their liver, or whatever, is taken out is flown to Shanghai, and somebody comes back to London with a new liver. They are probably told they are getting it from a convicted murderer, although of course they don't want it from a convicted murderer, they want it from a Falun Gong practitioner...

The next part of my talk is dealing with Ethan Gutman's book 'The Slaughter.' I'll read the closing words from the book as I think you'll agree with them. "No western entity posses the moral authority to allow the party, the Communist Party of China, to impede the excavation of a crime against humanity in exchange for promises of medical reform. As a survival mechanism for our species we must contextualize, evaluate, and ultimately learn from every human descent into mass murder. The critical thing is that there is a history and only the victims families can observe the party from it's weight."

Ethan, David Mavis, and I released an update in June of 2016, in Washington, Ottawa, and Brussels, you can access it from our website. I hope you all will, it's got over 2,000 footnotes, and approximately 700 pages, so we've gone into these hospitals very, very carefully, and we concluded that by looking at things like medical journals, nurses journals, hidden websites, and hidden archive material, that this is a state-run system across China, and it's run by the government, and it's the only place in the world that the government runs this heinous, heinous system of killing human beings.

We concluded, cautiously, that a minimum of 60 thousand transplants per year are being done across China. Not the approximately 10,000 that the government likes to convince people that they are doing. There's a very small pool of volunteer donors... plus a few thousand convicted prisoners. By my lawyers arithmetic, which you know is not good, about 150 people a day are being killed for their organs in China. That's a lot of human beings....

... China is the only country on earth, ladies and gentlemen, where sources are killed by organ extraction, and where sources are alive before and dead afterwards. Beijing has no credible answers to the work of independent researchers who have demonstrated the mass killing of innocents and actually Dr. Tohti is one of the most persuasive, because as you'll hear in a moment, he was one of the surgeons who first did these operations and he'll talk to you about that.

... The Chinese regime is not going to open up because of our trade with it... Governments and business elsewhere, and business everywhere should examine why they are supporting the violation of so many human rights in order to increase trade and investment with China. It's resulted mostly in national jobs being outsourced. I wonder how many jobs have gone from Britain to China, or Canada. The U.S., by the way, estimates it's about 20 million jobs have gone to China, and about 50 thousand factories have closed, most of them have moved to China. Are we so focused on access to inexpensive consumer goods that we ignore the human, social, and actual environment costs paid by abused Chinese nationals to produce them?...

... people are sent on a police signature to these forced labor camps across China, modeled by the ones created by Joseph Stalin and Adolf Hitler, there are no hearings, no appeals, nothing, they work 16 hours a day we are told. They make consumer products... obviously for multi-national companies outside of China, and as I say here, this constitutes gross corporate irresponsibility and a violation of WTO rules calling for an effective response by all trading partners of China....

...Given the scale of the transplantation industry in China it's impossible to deny the research in any manner... One can only hope that their willingness to confront the truth about China will prevail generally in the transplantation profession before many more innocents are killed for their organs...

... So in final conclusion, the first step in a better direction is to end organ pillaging transplantation truism now. Ponder the reality that if only 60 thousand transplants per year being done across China, as I said before that means about a 150 people a day are being killed for their organs."

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM ETHAN GUTMANN

Testified on April 17, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. regarding the Falun Gong and forced organ harvesting programs in China

ETHAN GUTMANN is a Nobel Peace Prize nominee and co-founder of the International Coalition to End Organ Abuse in China.

"This is an interesting picture (shows image of Chinese execution ground) and if you look at it, it's an execution ground. Look at the expressions, I don't know if you can see it that clearly, but look at the expressions on the faces. You've got one that's kind of reserved and he's holding himself back, he's trying to look official, there's another one that's trying to pretend it's all a big joke, actually I think he's probably a leader based on the mustache, and the one in the front is looking at us defiantly because he's the one that just did the shooting. You see that rag on his arm? That's to prevent his uniform from getting stained from the back-splatter as he fires the gun into the heads of the people he shot, and you can see the people that have been shot there. And the reason we have this picture at all is because in China this is an acceptable picture...

...But I think the significance of this form of organ harvesting is this, these are the new executioners. In other words, this is not really money based. The backbone of this whole thing is that it came from the Communists party's desire to control populations, not to make money. I mean making the money, in China these things get mixed up like they do anywhere, but money is really the corruption, the kind of gasoline that keeps the engine going. But the original creation of that engine was from the state. Increasingly for the last 20 years, really since 1997, these have become potential executioners and now they really are the one who do it. These people are done (have their organs removed) while they are alive.

... What (the research has) shown is that it's not 10 thousand transplants a year, as the Chinese claim, it's kind of an off-hand figure, it's 60 thousand, or 200 thousand, easily. That's a phenomenal figure and it means that the Chinese are, by far, number one in the world in this industry... and the fact is the main stream media has covered this issue. It's been in the New York Times six times over the last year and a half. People just don't look at the articles, they don't click on them. That's the truth. It's been in the Globe and Mail, it's been on CNN. Our report was directly reported on by CNN and Times of London, Independent, Guardian, Telegraph, people don't click on this stuff. There's not a lot of concern about it. And this is the truth.

... But he bigger mystery was what happened in China and this map is just to give you…(shows image of organ harvesting map) relevant sights and locations... If you were to actually cover all the places where organ harvesting takes place, all the prisons and hospitals and so-forth, you'd have a black mass over the entire east coast. But if we look towards the northwest, in that desert region up there, that's Armuchee, this is the home of the Uighurs, and Xinjiang, which Uighurs call East Turkistan, and it's at the Air Force hospital that our story begins. The Air Force hospital is where the first organ from a political prisoner that we know of was sold in 1997.

... Ghulja, in 1997, that's where you have this mild uprising which was followed by police suddenly patrolling the cemeteries. Ok, so young men were disappearing and suddenly the cemeteries were completely off limits. The reason why is because the bodies were essentially being stripped before they went to the graves. The same time you have a comprehensive blood testing, for the first time, of political prisoners in particular, and this is done on behalf of six high-ranking Chinese cadres who arrive in Armuchee looking for organs. They get their organs eventually, and I talked to the doctor who did the testing of the prisoners... and he did the testing and they got their organs and then six more arrived.

So that was the beginning of the cycle of taking innocent people and killing them for their organs. But it was kept very quite, and the whole Xinjiang region is very separated from China so it was easy to control that. I don't see any sign that it started to become policy for the rest of the country, and we really have a missing link at that point.

... in 2004 this doctor, whos name is Ko Wen-je, some of you may know him as the mayor of Taipei, he was a surgeon and he went to China, he was looking into organs for his clinic and everybody knew you go to China as there's a very short waiting list, about two weeks, to get an organ anywhere else you wait 2 years.

So he goes and he looks into prices and he was told they would give him the foreigner price, and bargained and bargained and said he wanted the Chinese price, they got to know each other and he finally expressed I'm not even sure these organs are any good as they are coming from drug addicts, they are coming from hardened criminals, these people they drink, they smoke, they are a real problem. They finally said, well look, you don't understand, all these organs are coming from the Falun Gong.

These people, they don't drink, they don't smoke, they practice this very healthy form of Chi Gong and all your patients are going to be healthy like them. So don't worry.

...Now just a word about numbers, here (show photo of five women) you've got a very good representation of Falun Gong refugees, these five women all had been in labor camp, all five women had been tortured, one of them, I'm not saying which one, was sexually abused very severely, and the one on the left was given blood tests that were clearly for organ tissue matching. There were looking at her very closely for her organs.

Of that, I pull a number of 65,000 (Falun Gong killed for their organs), which is much more complicated procedure than that, but it's really a wartime estimate. We don't really have a firm grasp on the numbers, that was 65,000 for 2000 to 2008, they have (Kilgour/Matas) is 41,500 between 2001 to 2005. We all find it very hard to make good calculations on how many people are actually dead, though I do believe it's in the 100s of thousands at this point.

... I estimated (the number of Falun Gong incarcerations) half a million to a million at any given time. Now those numbers aren't perfect. I'm sure there's a bit of a revolving door since sentences can range from one weekend to 20 years. But we are going to start seeing the same sorts of things coming out of this. We're seeing torture, even new methods of torture. I live here actually, I'm a British citizen, as well as an American Citizen, and I am somewhat ashamed in my new country for not grappling with this problem properly. Don't run with the Vatican, at least run with your allies. Run with America, run with the European Union. So I think that's the very least that could be done, at least go through the measure of condemning this procedure."

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM DR. ENVER TOHTI

Testified on April 17, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. regarding the Falun Gong and forced organ harvesting programs in China

DR. ENVER TOHTI is a renowned surgeon who speaks of the horrific crimes against the Falun Gong by the Communist Chinese who have an agenda of forced organ harvesting.

"The speakers (before me) have given you a general picture, I'm here to tell you how this kind of thing can happen in China. Because it can. Because I did one. There's a fundamental difference between western mind and the eastern mind. The western people they assume innocent until proven guilty. In the East, it is the other way around. So if you look at 'Your Heart, My Skin, must be different,' that is philosophy of Chinese culture. And this culture has been well adopted by the Chinese Communist Regime. So what this says is anyone labelling himself anything other than Communist Party, his heart must be different, therefore you are subject to whatever punishment available.

And a person like me, born to that society, just like born straight into the washing machine and get my brain washed, so I believed, genuinely believed whatever I had been told from the school, it's true. Just imagine people in North Korea now, it is who I was back then, I believed it. I believed that anyone condemned to death by authorities is enemy of the state. And me, as a surgeon of this country, I have moral duty to eliminate the enemy of the state. And this is our mentality. Of course, I have discovered what is called human rights, what is called civilization when I came to this country, and that is how I decided to speak out.

In 1995, I think it was a Wednesday...and that Wednesday I happened to be the one free that didn't have operation (on the schedule), so the day before, my two chief surgeons called me into the office and said, "Do you want to do something wild?" I said of course! I was so excited, because, I mean, I was young, and something wild means you don't get chance to do it. They said, "Assemble a team and bring the mobile operation equipment and meet us at hospital gate tomorrow at 9:30am." So I did.

At 9:30am I have my team and our van and the two chief surgeons appeared in a car and told us to follow them. Of course we were all young and so excited wondering what are we going to do. Then we followed them from the direction traveling towards the west. I know in western mountain area we have a branch hospital, so I thought we are going there, but half way there we turn left again and head straight to the mountain area and I got lost. I said where are we going. Our driver, he knows, and he said we are going to the execution ground.

Execution ground? What are we going to do there? We were actually a little scared wondering what are we going to do there. Anyway, we had been told we have to go, so we go. Then we arrived at the execution ground, it was behind a hill, and the two chief surgeons told us, "You wait here behind this hill, and when you hear the gunshots you just turn around and go inside." Then we went silent. Everybody stopped smoking and just standing there and don't know what to do. Probably 40 or 50 minutes later we heard gunshots, and that was not machine gun fire, it was many rifles shot at same time. We can tell that.

So that is like the order, we rushed in. On the left side of the hill, on the slope of the hill we can see five, or six, or seven, I don't exactly know how many, executed bodies. The shot is to the head from the back so the front of the head is blown away. And you can see all the executed prisoner's heads are shaved, like mine, with prisoners clothes. Then there's a police officer that said, "Go to the far right and that one is yours." I said, "Why is it mine?" Anyway, so we went there and the two chief surgeons said, "Now you take this body into your van and extract the liver and the two kidneys."

Now I understood what my duty was. And this man was wearing civilian clothes with long hair, and the shot is to his right chest here. As a surgeon I know that is a deliberate act, just make sure you will die, but not die immediately, so I have time to extract the organs. So when we put him in the van and the two chief surgeons guiding or observing, standing there, and they say, "Okay, you do." So I take my scalpel and when I cut through his body he tried to struggle, but he was too weak to resist against my action. And I can see blood come out, it means the heart is still beating, so he was alive, he was actually alive.

At that moment my whole body turned into a robot, just carrying out the duty for which I was programmed to do. Finally I removed the organs and the Chief Surgeon said, "Now you take your team back to the hospital, and remember, nothing happened today." As a man born to that society I know what that means, since that day, none of us ever talked about it, because we tried to forget about it. And then the two chief surgeons took the organs and they left, so where the organs went, I don't know...

Since I started campaigning with my friends here (Ethan Gutmann and Hon. David Kilgour), the most question that comes forward is how on earth can you do this, you're doctors, you're supposed to save people's lives and you are killing it.

Question by Chief Justice: "If you had resisted and not done what your were told, would you have been killed?"

Answer: To answer that you have to understand the Chinese system. There is one employer, the state, everybody is working for the state. If you don't obey the order, then you are out of a job, if you are out of job in that time China, it means you cannot get any job anymore. Your life is done.

Question by Chief Justice: "Where you made to repeat this terrible experience?"

Answer: No. ...I guess it was because I was the only one free on that day so I was chosen, and also in 1995 in Xinjiang the scale of the oppression it wasn't that big, and the reason they choose the Uighur people is there is nobody else on earth that are speaking for us, so nobody cared and that's how they turned our homeland a laboratory, gigantic laboratory.

(Shows a photo of a sign painted on the floor of a Chines airport) This is a sign on the floor of one of the airports in Xinjiang, and that's the Chinese language (on one side) and the next one is an arabic-looking language, which is the Uighur language, so a combination of these two languages and this sign can only been found in the Xinjiang airport, and what it says is, 'Special passenger and human organ transplantation expressway,' and this is at the airport. So imagine how big this traffic is to make an airport give you special pass-way to go freely. And that tells you the scale of this Chinese operation."

AN OPEN LETTER

Bishop Riah Abu El Assal

TRUTH & RECONCILIATION COMMISSIONER

The Bachelor of Divinity degree that I received in 1964 came from the first university ever built in India. It was founded in the city of Serampore, in 1818 by William Carey, a British shoe-maker and a Baptist missionary to that sub-continent (1793-1834). This same William Carey is noted for his call a day before he commenced his journey to a land he knew very little about:

'EXPECT GREAT THINGS FROM GOD. ATTEMPT GREAT THINGS FOR GOD.'

In following like-wise, the International Tribunal For Natural Justice resolved to take upon itself the task of addressing what maybe described as an 'impossible mission,' i.e. human trafficking and child sex abuse, both a crime against humanity, and a sin against God. The Tribunal's attempt is not only for God's sake, it is also on behalf of the millions of people created in His beautiful image... those who sufferer at the hands of traffickers and abusers every day.

The first step on this long and challenging journey has already been taken, and taken in the right direction. The Tribunal called for a three-day inquiry, April 16, 17, and 18, 2018, at Westminster Hall in London, England. The intention was to allow time and space for victims, and working with victims, to come forward and testify. To expose and target those engaging in this new form of modern slavery, forced labor, sexual exploitation, commercialization of new born babies, sexual abuse of women and children, creating a multi-billion dollar criminal industry. The ultimate goal is to track down all involved in this inhuman and barbaric business. Encouraging others of the same mind, people with dignity and guts, to join hands to put an end to this demonic exercise. In pursuing that goal, the Tribunal invited several people, many from different parts of the world, to come testify. The recording of their testimonies was and is simply for future action on their behalf.

The case and the cause of children under the age of consent was present on our hearts and minds. We were informed that tens of thousands of them are being brutally and sexually abused and left to live with fear and feelings of shame that many are unable to forget, and moreover, will never be ready to forgive.

We took notice of recent actions taken by Church leaders: His Holiness Pope Francis, reflecting on a child abuse case by a bishop in Chile, admitted 'grave error' in his judgement, adding: "I confess this caused me pain and shame." He also invited the victims to come before him in Rome so he my beg their forgiveness. Justin Welby, Archbishop of Canterbury, reflecting on cases of child abuse by church people, admitted failure: "We fully accept the failures of the Church of England in the area of safeguarding."

Special attention need be given to those children, of whom Jesus Christ said: "Suffer the little ones, and forbid them not, to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." (Matthew 19:14) The protection and rehabilitation of individuals rescued from the evil doers was not absent from our deliberations. The Tribunal will explore ways and suggest ideas on how best to attend to this matter.

Listening to the testimonies moved some present to tears. Some to anger. There were moments when one felt speechless, not simply short of words. We were brought face to face with the seriousness of the situation due to lack of action from the authorities and governments. Shocking were the stories of people in high office colluding with the criminals, and shameful how religious institutions and church leaders covered up child sex abuse. I was also dismayed to learn that of the thousands accused of child sex abuse, legal action was taken against only 4%, and of the clergy, hardly any defrocked. The opposite of that was the true reality: either covering up transgression, or closing eyes and ears, or accusing the victims, thus causing greater damage to their reputation.

We realized that the mission we have committed ourselves to, or perhaps more rightly stated entrusted to us, is no small thing. As St. Paul would write in his letter to the Ephesians (6:12): "Our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, the authorities, against the powers of this world's darkness, and against the spiritual forces of evil." Listening to the victims, some of whom sounded confused, afraid of not being believed, haunted, and psychologically and physically destroyed.

The findings of the Inquiry demand that we stand firm in defending the sacredness of the lives and human dignity of all victims, their right to restore their freedom, and their right to lead a life away from fear and shame. This requires of us to join hands with others, set a plan of action to target traffickers and abusers, while doing our best to protect and rehabilitate those saved.

In closing, my personal thanks and appreciation go first to the victims and their supporters for daring to come forth and testify, and to all the assistants behind the stage, and to those who contributed of their time and means. Special thanks go to our friend Sacha Stone who worked tirelessly to see this first step accomplished.

What should be next? Continue our journey, if not for God's sake, then for the sake of those who entrusted not only their testimonies, but themselves to us. Total commitment is what is needed until, as the abused in Chile said to His Holiness Pope Francis,
"ZERO tolerance about abuse and cover up becomes a reality."

Witness Testimony

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM MIRA MAKAR, MA, FCA

Testified on April 16, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. regarding money flow aspects of transactions involving human trafficking

MIRA MAKAR has operated in the rescue market since 1982, mainly as principal; with customer sites in Europe, Crown Dependencies, and Hong Kong. A witness to the Companies Investigation Branch of the DTI since 2005, Mira has sector specialization in leading teams delivering operating systems in trust and fiduciary, and private banking.

"My testimony highlighted the money flow aspects of transactions involving human trafficking as evidenced before the Commission, as well as evidencing the laundering of such proceeds.

I drew parallels with mature cross border markets for financial instruments, including those for risk shift, conversion, elimination; tax evasion product; as well as the rental on commission of professional firms' infrastructures, operating as transaction facilitators in more complex Ponzi schemes.

I testified about highlighting common laundering apparatus, such as bankruptcy courts, operating devices such as 'branding;' state registers; property markets; organs of state; as well as wealth managers including fiduciary.

My testimony was set out in five sections.
These covered:

(i) money laundering of financial fraud instruments as relied upon and used in human trafficking (the 'apparatus' or 'machinery');

(ii) demonstrating that articles used in financial fraud in developed markets have a comparable in human trafficking by dint of putting an explicit or implicit price on human life (to trade or buy out of bondage) and/or components of deception (e.g. enticing a person to move in the hope of escape and/or improved prospects);

(iii) identifying use of 'professional' firms as fronts. These are facilitators of anonymity. They are rentiers of infrastructures with a plethora of devices in their tool-kit or armoury, including to facilitate obstruction and prolonged alienation with a view to disabling and weakening, including by driving wedges between key relationships of trust.

These devices include putting a price on a Target's head, with transaction commission 'paid for' out of dissolved Target's estate/standing. The integrity of the whole is a form of hermetic seal. It includes the right to assert oneself, including image. Once broken, it cannot be put together again with glue or otherwise. It is comparable to judicial review after the event which gives a favourable outcome but after the irreparable damage is done (e.g. closing day centre for the elderly or citizens advice). Human rights evaporate on death.

A contaminated law enforcement system is one which is permissive of perversity without automatic contempt and curtailment. It will reference 'balancing rights' rather than recognizing that each human right is absolute and co-exists with each of the other rights severally. The sanctity of human life operated in the judicial system is undermined when journalists' duty to inform (protected by law from inadvertent mistakes by them) is blocked by tortured 'argument' on privacy and right to family life.

An essential feature of the apparatus incorporating perversity is disablement of 'normal' checks and balances. An example is the use of 'complaints' and exporting the obstruction to a captivated ombudsman of some sort, rather than line management escalation, error handling and issues resolution. 'Regulation' incorporates complaints i.e. the task is to get rid of the complainant rather than resolve the issue. The bereaved are not heard or sufficiently informed with access to a trodden route for repair.

Such plethora of devices can be colloquially known as having 'skin in the game' on the part of operators of instruments of perversity together with intent (deceit, malice or both), a toxic mix.

There is a curtailment void. It is exacerbated by product that puts a money value on wrongdoing ('fines') without curtailment. It has a parallel in payments to those stigmatized as 'whistleblowers' from which intermediaries' profit, whilst the cover-up of wrongdoing is masked, the wrongdoing itself buried;

(iv) recognizing transactions involving risk transfer, risk conversion, risk elimination used together with the above instruments of perversity. These are inevitably a Ponzi scheme in that the exit, together with underwriting, of the first investors is funded by the investments of subsequent newer investors (cash or activating network or both), including assumption of risk.

Although there are a plethora of aspects to the apparatus, as well as well trodden paths, many devises are shrunk-wrapped and underwritten in the market. The assumed risk disappears from a consolidate balance sheet (cost of sales), whilst the profit is wrapped in a quoted instrument. This is referred to as 'privatizing' profit. Social cost is spread over a disparate group, through pensions, tax, withdrawal of essential social support. As there is no mechanism for organizing 'losers' they are not heard;

(v) Although there are a plethora of aspects to the apparatus, as well as variations of well trodden paths, there are also well trodden recognised routes. This must be facilitated by those operating 'on the inside' in order to succeed.

The inside includes the statutory auditor who has the opportunity of access to commercially sensitive information to be used to his own advantage including for example to 'stitch up' directors on sight of default by the company's bank, broker, insurer. This ploy has been expanded to include external provision of 'internal auditors' and joint operations between the two for mutual gain.

The most obvious infrastructure used are also the ones which would be the easiest and cheapest to repair. They include:
(i) bankruptcy courts (used for humiliating and public degrading advertising, as well as professionally discrediting, including in regard [potential] witnesses in crown courts); (ii) state registers (integrity is achieved by avoiding automation; if irresistible, integrity controls are labour intensive); (iii) media/ websites/subscription services, used to link networks cross border including territories where ownership is secret; (iv) organs of state including the courts (especially family courts and court of protection). Anonymity and ponzi schemes involving perversity have not been heard in the courts. Until heard, there will be no curtailment; (v) wealth managers including tax and fiduciary operations.

My testimony as witness brought into evidence pricing and information issues which came out of introductions by the Commissioners of their own experience. This experience was not otherwise brought into formal opening evidence. This included the buy-out price from bondage of a child tied to a loom for his working hours (900 rupees); and the example of young men sold to be used for gratification/exploitation purposes ($700). There was also shown two images side by side: the first image showed kids in a cart on a field putting their hands out to another kid to help him up (the inference being an image of presumed poverty and exploitation) and the second image showing a luxury yacht harboured somewhere in the south of France (the inference being an image of presumed wealth). The point being made was of the concentration of global wealth, as defined, in the hands of the few. The complex interconnect and causal links between the two requires unbundling. 'Ethical investing' goes some way to identifying the problem by demanding sufficient information in market reporting that covers the entirety of the supply chain.

CONCLUSIONS

My testimony concluded by saying that each time there is a perversity (on a register, in the court) the converse (relief) is automatically triggered. This, on the surface, suggests that the 'system' is self-adjusting. This is because the Target (who may be the subject of bullying for example to cause them to abandon their standing and estate) automatically acquires a valid cause of action. In practice this is not the case.

- Policy

In practice the apparatus or organs of state are not geared up to perversity or contamination of law enforcement by policy. The Land Registry and Land Charges Register in the UK is an example. The Chief Land Registrar may make a change on the register. This means a human must consider the potential change and make a decision (not a computer, robot, or computer linked to other computers operated by labour from a staffing agency). Second he shall make entries (implicitly having considered the proposed change). This should be effective in preserving the integrity of the register unless there is contamination. "Policy" (i) exonerates 'lawyers' including 'conveyancers' from attaching raw evidence emanating from the principals/owners themselves. Others as land owners must provide evidence; (ii) pushes the operations away from the local area to which they relate, such that the register staff are not first hand informed and the registers are not accessible by foot and to those who do not use technology; (iii) there are no or limited opportunities for work were register staff to resign. Consequently there is no trodden path for repair. The indemnity from the Land Registrar provided for in law, effectively disappeared to be replaced by a 'fund' inaccessible without 'litigating' i.e. gone without withdrawal through Parliament, which would not be achieved without full and true picture.

- Money cost of repair is trivial

The money cost of essential repair is trivial. It is achieved by:

- addressing the facilitating devices (ultimately these do not work because a price cannot be put on human life;
- recognising that the biggest advantage of crown proceedings is not value recovered but curtailment of the wrongdoing;
- tackling anonymity at the front door of the court (including funding) as a precursor to crossing the threshold;
- a first authority that value creation by bringing down judicial standing is a perversity and contempt. Contempt of court is a recognized omission from the civil procedure rules;

- dealing with trading in personal data including 'professional firms' operating schemes of 'sweating the assets' that is to say information of clients and targets, to fuel long term networks and alignments;
- providing for registers with integrity which do not separate 'lawyers' (no evidence required) and landowners.

Until the repair happens in practice there is an anonymized lock-in of the Target in the courts, whose identity and property are taken and used. This includes in out of court 'contracts,' i.e. 'commercially' binding contracts on those seeking to join or operate in a network but otherwise void ab initio. The transaction expenses are underwritten by the Target's estate, and there is no mechanism to get out. The conditions of slavery servitude and forced labour for no pay continue indefinitely. In other words the judicial system, guardian of the sanctity of human life, operates to close a person down, whilst outside the court the message goes 'close the family files' or there is an undocumented threat.

The effectiveness can be measured by the 'buy-in' cost, for example joining a limited liability partnership operating on a debenture from a bank. The bank has full rights at any time, that is the operation is wholly tied to the bank (in essence bank lending to itself).

The individual must bring business with him. He/his new firm is at the bottom of the rankings, similar to rankings on access to insider information. They will be the middleman for breaking the Target down, hiring others who hire burglars, locksmiths, forgers; getting 'inside;' linking with those operating in tax havens with secret ownership. They will carry up front bank indemnity as incentive/guarantee, heavily rewarded on route as debentures are churned and the greatest skin in the game. The network (the whole Ponzi scheme) is at risk if the Target(s) or any part of it survives.

Once such 'buy in' price has become a 'norm,' including heightened risk and stakes, all bets are off as to the eventual outcome.

The global economic uncertainty together with the impact of market instability is not easily capable of being quantified.

FORWARD LOOKING

The Commission has opened in times of circumstances of extreme global uncertainty (April 2018). This gives a moving backdrop. Most public enquiries are forced to focus on boundaries and fixing the questions they seek to have answered or issues exposed. Inevitably this means they suffer from 'built in obsolescence.' A recent example is a House of Lords enquiry which has published research on BREXIT transition and post BREXIT in regard the European courts for dealing with disputes, with preliminary conclusions of diminished influence and accountability. It is to be used to inform debate. The scope was set to exclude ECHR. The Commission can usefully make use of this preliminary research work, yet incorporating evidence as to the extent the encountered difficulties are remedied through the ECHR, rather than embarking on primary research itself.

Challenges and opportunities for the Commission are to take advantage of being nimble and flexible such that it can accommodate contemporaneous developments and manage obsolescence risk; to shine a light where previous there was darkness; whilst taking those steps necessary to ensure accessibility for those in the position to be able to curtail aberrations and, worse, trading in them.

AN OPEN LETTER

Vanita Patel MBE

COMMISSIONER FOR THE INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

In April, 2018, during three beautiful Spring days, I attended a poignant hearing on human trafficking and child sex abuse hosted by the International Tribunal for Natural Justice at Westminster Central Hall, just steps away from the British Parliament. As a newly appointed Commissioner I was expecting to hear and see some awful things human beings do to each other.

A long-term supporter and Patron of Anti Slavery International I knew of the horrors of the abhorrent practices of the past and present slavery trade, particularly human trafficking and child sex abuse. I know that, according to the 2017 Global Slavery Index, there are an estimated 45.8 million people in some form of slavery in 167 countries around the world. Slavery is more prevalent today than it was centuries ago when slavery was actually legal! I also know that basic human rights of children and adults are being grossly violated, but I was not prepared for what was presented at this Inquiry.

Just an hour into the harrowing testimonies and evidence presented at the hearing, the face of humanity began to grow uglier. I learned that almost eight million missing children get abused and often murdered by the pedophiles of the world. That is 22,000 children a day! I heard cases of gross child abuse in its most sadistic forms, and evidence of organs forcefully removed and sold for profit in China from the Falun Gong communities. Desperate patients from across the world travel to China and are able to search and buy organs within days compared to waiting years in other countries. Falun Gong practitioners adhere to truthfulness, kindness, and are completely non-violent, therefore they are no threat to the Chinese Communist party, yet they are persecuted. They pay the price for their healthy lifestyles by being robbed of their 'healthy' organs... very often while still alive! Men, women, and children are subjected torture and cruelty in inhumane and degrading ways.

Hour by hour the testimonies and substantiated records and experiences revealed that, despite the efforts of the international community to combat these abhorrent practices, they are still widely in existence, and in many hidden forms. Often these practices are organized in highly sophisticated systems, from the ground level to the halls of power, across the globe. It was evident that human trafficking and child sexual abuse is a multibillion-dollar industry entwined in commercialism, greed, lust, and power which is gnawing away at the face of HUMANITY.

The survivors experienced utter isolation from the people in 'trusted support systems' and were under constant control from the abusers. Most victims become trapped in a vicious circle and fail to survive, or meet their needs to survive, because of their distrust in their communities, past trauma, religion, cultural barriers, and they often enter the dark world of being abusers themselves.

Some of the places where these abuses are allowed to happen are the victims own home, welfare homes, schools, N.G.Os, Governmental organisations and departments, churches, online platforms, and areas where natural disasters or war expose women and children to gross exploitation in the most horrific ways.

The ITNJ Judicial Commission of Inquiry is here to listen, to investigate, to consider evidence, and become the voice for these cruelly silenced victims of human trafficking and child sex abuse by addressing the plight of the abused and the methods of the abusers. $3 million dollars is required by the Commission to educate communities of this plight, and will make it possible to create action plans in several countries to help put an end to these unacceptable practices. It will play a pivotal role to secure an end to the trafficked and sexually abused children and adults in our world. It is the responsibility of every human of every race, sex, creed, country, or religion, to actively facilitate the securing of basic human rights for all citizens of the world. Join us.

Together we can break this cycle of abuse for the most vulnerable men, women, and children on this planet.

Witness Testimony

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM KRISTY ALLEN

Testified on April 17, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. regarding the MK-Ultra program and Satanic Ritual Abuse

KRISTY ALLEN was a former highly awarded female vocalist in the Mormon church. She had an acclaimed singing career which ended upon a spiritual awakening where she was forced to face the sudden realization she and her many siblings had been embedded in the MK-Ultra/SRA program.

"I wish I could say that ritual abuse happened in isolated incidents that were few and far between. That it was only Hollywood that had been taken over by the Satanists because of their very special bloodlines. But it's the chosen ones and the non-chosen ones. The expendables and the non-expendables. The babies and 'milk carton' kids in large numbers (some say Satanists are between 8–11% of our population!) that are sacrificed in every large and small town in America.

My family were part of the MK Ultra program started by Operation Paperclip and masterminded by our original handler Mr. Greenhalgh. To us he was Mr. Greenhalgh, but there is reasonable evidence to suggest that his real name was Joseph Mengele (the Operation Paperclip Nazi scientist who used names with the word 'green' in them). My family were used as entertainers, child pilots (in wars), medics, special messengers, high priced call girls, Presidential models, sports figures, & international spies.
This story is about generational incest, abuse, CIA kiddy porn distribution, and satanic ritual families that have no idea what they are involved in on a conscious level. It's about mind wipes and controlling those that have the most to offer the world because of their DNA, talents and special gifts. It's about how the 'Priesthood', sacred societies, Freemasonry, and a satanic pedophilia agenda is widely used to control governments, religions, and local police to do their bidding.

The darkness loves to hide behind the light so don't be surprised when I tell you that the same Mormon Bishop (later to become a Prophet of the Mormon Church) tried to rape a friend of mine right after she got married. He was the same 'Priesthood Leader' that later officiated in a satanic ritual where he almost got away with raping, killing and offering my sisters to an 'unknown God' in the SLC temple.
But it's also about the power of love and acceptance and trust. It's about one woman's search for answers, and healing, and the story of how she found her true love (Dr. Dean G. Allen, PhD). She was a celebrated Mormon singer. She had a radio show. She hosted TV shows and wrote beautiful songs. But she had a secret that she couldn't tell (and holding it in almost killed her).

Dean said that telling the truth is the greatest human trauma because it has been punished over the centuries more than anything else. So everyone has this in their genetic memory and are triggered whenever they do it (which is why so many keep their experiences to themselves). Since sharing my story, I've lost a 20 year singing career, lots of money, and my home (not to mention some 'touch and gos' with my health!), so I know how unpopular the truth can be in some circles!

Nancy tried to tell, and was shamed, and got sent away to Aunt Daisy. Dawn tried to tell, and got sent to a Catholic convent with bars on the doors at 11 years old! Priscilla tried to tell and went to CPS as a child and was pushed out of a car half naked after being raped by her commanding officer. Irene witnessed my father rape our sister and she took a gun and shot herself in the stomach rather than tell. My mother tried to tell and was sent to a place for shock treatments for 6 months while she was pregnant! Pamela tried to tell and divorced herself from the family for over 20 years and couldn't bring herself to attend my mothers' funeral.

April tried to tell and got her children taken away and put in prison trying to get them back! So I applaud my brave sisters for coming forward and having the courage to tell me their stories. It was difficult to believe all they were saying, but even then (before my own horrific memories surfaced), deep down I knew something was really wrong behind the smiles and façades of my family and I needed answers.

I was 42 in 1997 when I saw Cathy O'Brien speak. She said she remembered me and my family during her 'Mormon MK Ultra days.' That was a stunner. But after that conversation with her, my sisters' stories finally began to make some sense. The next day I asked Dawn to repeat what happened to her in the military and told her that I would believe her this time. (A word about Operation Mockingbird: When my sister Dawn joined the army, she was on a base where 'enlistees' became Hollywood stars. Talents were showcased, lots of parties went on constantly, and she noted that drugs were everywhere present on the base and literally free for the asking.)

She told me how she was asked to meet with a man 'across the street' from this military base. It was a short meeting. When inside his office, he asked her if she could keep a secret. She said, "Yes." He said, "We'll see." She was asked to report back to him and bring her guitar with her in two weeks.

At the end of 2 weeks she was sitting back in the same chair in front of him. He said, "Well, we found out that you can keep a secret." He told her she was up for promotion (a singer/drug mule for a cruise line) and read her dossier. Then our entire family's dossiers hit the floor including mine! They picked them up and she asked him how he knew so much about our family, and he answered: "Your dad sold you to us." In that moment, I believed every word all my sisters had told me.

My father was a 'chosen one' because of his exceptional IQ, his bloodline (he claims he is the illegitimate son of a Utah Senator), his desire to follow orders, his talent (Air Force Band) and most of all – HIS 'PATRIOTISM'! His family came from Colonial Juarez in Mexico (a Mormon colony that funnelled Nazi's into the states for Operation Paperclip). Mitt Romney's polygamist family also came from there.

Most members of the military never figure this out, but when my father 'enlisted' in the Air Force, his children instantly 'belonged' to the evil souls that perpetrated untold horrors on each of us. But blind trust is not informed consent and this kind of trickery on paper is not consent! What is sad is that my father did it all under the guise of 'patriotism' to God and country! He was also a multi-generational cult member of a satanic ritual family that was deeply embedded into the Mormon church that also asks us to pledge 'our time, talents, property, and all with which the Lord has blessed us to building up the Kingdom of God on earth.' The question that begs to be asked is: 'What God?'

Ritualistic child abuse is the most hideous of all child abuse. The basic objective is to systematically terrorize children (often performed by close relatives) until they are forced to dissociate so a part of them can be controlled. Once the abuse is over, the core personality is not conscious of what happened. The victims lead relatively normal lives, until they get triggered and flashbacks or nightmares occur.

Now keep in mind that this is, and always has been, about money and power. It's about creating robots that knowingly or unknowingly keep the drug cartels, violent gangs, human trafficking, sex trade, child trafficking, child porn industry and human slavery as alive and lucrative as possible.

Churches are the perfect places for this to hide. They are filled with remorseful people that are told to read more scripture, repent and pay twice as much tithing as a part of the repentance process! They are not told that as a victim it was not their fault. They are not protected by the police and social services. In fact, there is increasing evidence that CPS are involved in the human trafficking schemes while honest, faithful church members continue to be prey to pedophiles and taught to stay quiet instead. Police are complicit, Sheriff's are complicit, and all phony government officials are more loyal to 'the order,' secret societies, and the bottom line than to the people they are sworn to protect!

Children are the worst victims. There seems to be far more concern about damage to church buildings than damage to children! Meanwhile, untreated pedophilia leads to wolves in sheep's clothing and the sheer numbers of victims is staggering (who are often only discovered after harm has been done).
During my families' satanic tortures in churches, temples, air force bases, deep underground military bases, caves, and old warehouses; we were involved in psychic driving where we wore a type of helmet and wires were connected to the tenderest parts of our bodies. We were given pleasure when we did what the torturers wanted and excruciating pain when we did not comply. We were pitted against each other, capped, mutilated, used for military experimentation and our DNA was stolen and created for who knows what? But the worst part was being force to witness babies being tortured, raped, murdered and eaten.

Our parents were often above us in a glassed room where we thought they were looking down on us (it was most likely a one way mirror where they could not see us at all). They were shown funny movies, so we thought they were laughing at us during our pain! The plan here was to shatter trust. To believe that if we couldn't even go to our parents, there was no place else to go (except to dissociate). The experimentations I went through caused severe earaches and endometriosis (each month my pain was so bad my mother would have to take me to the doctors to shoot me up with darvon or demerol to put me out for 2 days). April said that the little kids would 'borrow from my iron will' when the torture would get so bad because I would ask to take the torture instead of them.

The psychopaths do these things to families so they can control them (automatically and generationally). The good news is that this all ends when people start telling their stories. Only then can we see that they're all the same story. We are the jailers and liberators. So may this tribunal eventually lead to not only compassion for victims and perpetrators; but to justice as well because we are the ones we have been waiting for!

Psychopaths love the light as long as they can control it, use it, abuse it, and own it. That's what pedophilia and child abuse is. One of my handlers asked me, "Wouldn't you like to be known for your lovely voice instead of this horrible story?" That held me down and kept me from telling it for a long time (but that didn't go so well). So even though it has been very difficult for me to bring this all out, I realize that I cannot hold this back any longer or the cycle will just continue on and on (and I don't know about you, but I don't want to live in a world like this any longer)! So to all victims everywhere, I invite you to tell your stories. Tell them so you don't feel alone anymore. Tell them so you can get the validation you deserve because you are not crazy (the psychopaths that did this to you are crazy, but you're not crazy)! Tell your stories because it's time for these patterns to end. We deserve freedom instead of slavery, and love instead of fear, and true leadership and community instead of what we've got right now.

I once heard that in a nation of sheep, ruled by wolves & owned by pigs, you must become a lion! So to all lions everywhere I say: It's time to ROAR!"

AN OPEN LETTER

Carine Hutsebaut

COMMISSIONER FOR THE INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

I often wonder how our world would have looked if each child would have been able to grow up in a normal way and not been seen as a target, bait, and sexual object… what a creative world would we have now!

The impact of child sexual abuse – especially on the scale that it is being performed worldwide – is devastating for society as a whole. Scientific researchers in California have proven that the trauma of pedophilia damages the brain. Because of this, children need all their energy to reconstruct themselves from the confusion, the feelings of guilt, and the impact on their integrity. They have no energy left to be creative, to be joyful, to be a kid, to feel like a complete human being.

Infertility in female victims is one of the consequences of sexual abuse, and approximately 10% of male victims become violent sex offenders themselves. Some try to find solace in drugs, alcohol, prostitution, some want to get even by becoming criminals, some just give-up on life as they have lost all self confidence. The list is endless.

An average child sex offender's sexually active years are between the ages of 15 and 65, and during this time they can victimize between 100 to 150 children. If 10% of their victims become abusers, then there are 15 new abusers created. If each of these abuse 150 victims, then this means one offender can directly contribute to 2,250 new victims. Now imagine the impact this has on society as a whole, not to mention the financial cost to repair all the damage done. It creates a society full of child sex offenders, drug abusers, alcohol abusers, thieves, and violent people not able to love.

Now let's look a the definition of 'pedophile:'

> Pedophile is a word from the Greek words; pais (παις, wortel paid- = 'boy', 'child') and philía (φιλία, 'friendship;') is a term used for primary feeling sexually attracted to adults and certain adolescents to children who are not yet sexually mature.
> pe · do · phile (de, m, v; plural: pedophiles) an adult who feels sexual love for children

After having worked with child sex offenders for over 30 years, I've come to the conclusion that they call it love, but it is not the correct use of the word. What they feel is a sexual attraction to children that has nothing to do with love. The ultimate proof is that once these children's bodies begin maturing and showing the signs of adulthood (i.e., pubic and underarm hair) the 'love' is over, and offenders then start to hunt for new, younger victims.

Most of the child sex offenders I work with admit, after some months of treatment, that what they feel has nothing to do with the child but with the power and control over a more vulnerable 'partner.' They do it because they like it, and because they can. When asked about a specific victim several years after the abuse took place, most of the offenders even don't remember the victim, let alone their name. What has love to do with it?

Almost all of the offenders I had in treatment misuse the term pedophile. They said to me: "Miss Hutsebaut, do you know what pedophile means? It means: loving children." My response is always, "You don't love children, you love sex with children. If you really loved children then you would respect them in the first place." The term pedophile is used as the first excuse of offenders to justify their crimes. We cannot allow that. Therefore I almost never use the word 'pedophile.' A better term to put the record straight is:

pedosexual – sexually attracted to children

I am honored to be part of the International Tribunal for Natural Justice, and I was delighted the ITNJ had nothing to do with the existing judicial systems. I was in heaven to hear them talking about 'Natural' Justice: By the People, For the People. The ITNJ are very motivated, professional, and brave people working to achieve justice for victims of sexual and other abuses. Thank you for this. The ITNJ is a group that recognizes and respects the bravery of the victims coming forward with the unthinkable.

And I keep in my mind all those victims who did not survive the atrocities done to them. My heart goes out to all those babies born into satanic networks which whom nobody has ever known of their existence. I hope all those victims can forgive me for not having been able to save them all.

Child sexual abuse and child killings in criminalized organizations are the last taboo in our society. Let's put the blame where it belongs: with the perpetrators and only the perpetuators.

Let's start to use the right words.

THE ITNJ JUDICIAL REVIEW

Article by Commissioner Lewis Montague

In April, 2018, the ITNJ's first official Judicial Review on Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse, held in Westminster Central Hall close to the houses of Parliament, London, the acknowledged seat of the first efforts to create statute law, got off to an incredible, positive, and productive start.

The three day hearing, which heard victims and experts give testimony in Camera (privately), was the first major thrust by the ITNJ. This review is the first stage of an investigation into this global long-term toxic situation.

The hearing is now finished – but, as mentioned, that only heralded the start of a longer-term investigation by the ITNJ.

So what happens when the review fully completes its investigation?

How are we going to use effectively this information that will become officially documented through the Judicial Review, including numerous videos of the proceedings?

Ideally we would like to put before the public the findings of the review, but encouraging mainstream media to publish those findings could be a challenge, since we are aware of how mainstream media operates. You could draw your own conclusion as to why the establishment wouldn't be interested in sharing these findings with the public. The establishment believe that they completely control the public, of whatever country, whether they have either been elected or appointed to positions of trust, however, the public are, in reality, their masters. The establishment is run by 'servants of the public' – we wonder at what stage those roles were reversed. This review may well be the commencement of exposing the involvement of some members of the establishment in these deplorable activities.

There is dire need for change in the attitudes of authority. While we tend to disparage authority in general, clearly the majority of people involved in our various levels of government are people of integrity. These are the people we will be identifying as the eventual recipients of the proceeds of our work and the future influencers for the demanded change. We are setting up a website to publish the efforts, as they unfold, to disseminate this valuable and essential information.

An informative package will be put together highlighting the salient aspects of the review and will be sent to members of Governments across the globe. We will ask each recipient for a response to these documents and their responses will be documented on our web portal, including those who gave no response. We will post a copy of the letters sent and all responses on social media for the world to see. Our goal is to send a second letter to those who did not respond, just confirming that they have no interest in the subjects being reviewed. Should the second letter not receive a response, then we will move forward to contact the local political party in the politician's constituency alerting them to the lack of response by their elected member, as a lack of response could mean complacency in this very serious subject matter.

We will also be sending this information to: all major media sites, the NPCC in the UK, to university Chancellors, to Directors of Social Services, to CEOs of Hospital Trusts, to television networks and radio programmes, to Heads of Chambers at the Inns (barristers) and the Law Society (solicitors), NGO's and IGO's; asking for their support.

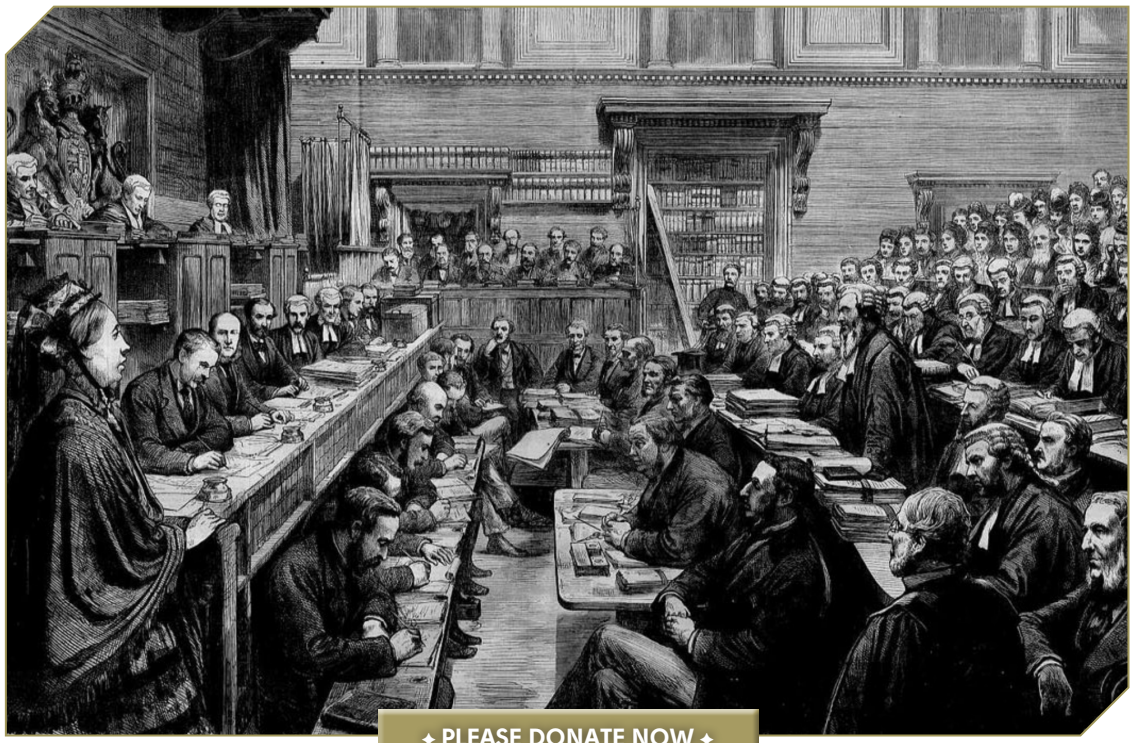

We will bring all relevant organizations together to fight as one voice to influence government and the United Nations. The plans for the dissemination of this crucial and life saving information will be applied to all countries using the above template. The ongoing investigation will involve more interviews with victims, interviews with police agencies, interviews with politicians and others.

That's about disseminating the information. But what can we then expect?

Using the experience gained over the past three years, the ITNJ intends to create an independent prosecution service – taking on the role of arbiter for cases put forward to the ITNJ by members of the public. It will be a prosecution service 'by the people, for the people.' A truly independent organization that will investigate and review cases put before it. This service will then decide, upon the completion of its investigation, whether to bring the case to the ITNJ.

Right now we need to continue to work together, to keep talking, keep emailing, and sharing on social media, until we bring these perpetrators into the light and show the world that these evil practices are no longer tolerated, that we, the people, have simply had enough. Together we can help bring the heinous crimes of human trafficking and child sex abuse, being perpetrated by people who believe they are above the law, to an end. In this noble endeavour the ITNJ will be purposefully leading the way.

Witness Testimony

EXTRACTED STATEMENT FROM ANTHONY STANSFELD, THAMES VALLEY POLICE AND CRIME COMMISSIONER IN THE MICHELLE YOUNG CASE: A SPECIAL HEARING ADJUNCT TO THE COMMISSION OF INQUIRY

Testified on April 18, 2018 before the I.T.N.J. re: Global Finanicial Corruption & Collusion

ANTHONY STANSFELD is the Thames Valley Police and Crime Commissioner in the United Kingdom (with parliamentary privilege). He is the first person to hold the post and was elected on 15 November 2012.

"Good afternoon. I'm an elected person as the police and crime commissioner. I'm elected over the Thames Valley which is the biggest area really and non metropolitan area in the country. It's got about 2.5 million people in it and it represents 21 parliamentary constituents including the Prime Minister's and the last Prime Minister's, the number two in government, so I have a reasonable political voice.

I'm in effect an executive chairman of law and order across said area, and in 2013 we started an investigation into one of the banks. It was a bank that no longer existed, but had been taken over. But the directors had been moved between the two banks, and that was Halifax Bank of Scotland (HBOS) which was taken over by Lloyds in 2008/2009, and it was an extraordinary investigation.

Two other police forces had turned it down, the Serious Fraud Office wouldn't look at it. We did look at it, and it was one family, a man and wife team called Paul and Nikki Turner who put the cases together and brought it to Thames Valley. It looked as though a very large proportion of the crime had been committed out of Redding. It was a vast fraud, and we duly got sucked in and investigated. It took three years during which the bank offered very little support.

We only looked at a fraud of £245 million. I think there was a reason for that. It was deliberately being kept below £250 million. If it had been over, it would have to have been reported in all their accounts, and they were very keen not to do that, as they were doing rights issues at the time.

After a case that lasted a very long time, and cost us about £7 million (should have cost a lot less if we'd had cooperation properly from the bank throughout) the bankers were convicted. It was an interesting one that Lloyds bank denied throughout that period, even when their own banker pleaded guilty - they denied the fraud.

For 10 years they knew about the fraud and for 10 years they had gone for the personal guarantees of the people they had knowingly defrauded, and this bankrupted thousands of people. They had their houses taken away, their homes….people committed suicide, there were divorces. Sheer misery it caused. The bank chairmen were perfectly aware of it because they were written to by so many victims, and it simply wasn't followed-up. Eventually we got the convictions. I think the bank was actually horrified that we got the convictions, and that happened at the end of January last year (2017). I think that was the opening of the flood gates. They'd taken rather a long time to open.

What became apparent was that the fraud wasn't £250 million - or £245 - which we prosecuted on. It was near a billion on this one particular bank. It was an interesting fraud. They were defrauding not only the bank, but their clients at the same time. So I think it was a huge degree of incompetence by the bank. But it also came out that there were a vast number of other victims from RBS (and Lloyds itself) on a huge scale….the GRG division…..I don't know how many companies with it…...something like 16,000 (I'm not absolutely certain of that figure). Only 10% ever got out of GRG.

Now you would think if these were toxic companies that were collapsing - GRG would be losing money. They made an enormous profit. The head of it is now the chief of Santander, which I personally find extraordinary. That was stated in the house of commons by Sir Vince Cable.

There was an interesting sideline to all of this, that most police forces do not have the money, or the capacity, or the capability to take on fraud cases. When you find yourself legislating or prosecuting a bank - they have the smartest London solicitors and unlimited money to spend on their legal cases. (As for) the police, it cost us £7 million. We didn't get much of that back, we got £2 million back from the Treasury, from the Home Office.

No private individual can really take a case against the bank. They will put the case off, they will come up with every problem, and even people who are still well-off after they've had all their companies taken away from them, or their homes……the case will be put off and put off, and there's a six year statute of limitations which the bank is well aware of on cases…..and they play on that.

I've seen major companies (into the several hundred million pounds) that have been removed off people and they simply are out-lawyered in the courts. I don't think the courts are remotely supportive, and I think we (saw) that in the case we've just heard.

The repossessions from Lloyds and RBS are still going on. I went to see Dame Linda Dobbs, who is doing the internal inquiry of Lloyds, the other day, and as I walked down Deities Street again to see her, I was rung-up by a lady who was having her property taken away as she spoke to me on the phone. The police were there, the bailiffs were there, and I couldn't do anything about it…... there was a Court Order. Do I think that Court Order was a fair one, that had been got at properly? No I don't for a moment think it had been…. but there was nothing I could actually do about it at that stage.

I think (and it's a personal opinion) but I do lead on major fraud for the Police Commission in the country, that something has gone seriously rotten in the leadership of some of our major banks at the moment. One staggering thing is that there's nobody on the board, I think there is one person on the board of our major banks, clearing banks, who's a qualified banker. They simply are not qualified bankers. They're all accountants….or just businessmen….and of course they're making absolute millions. And their legal expenses are not paid by them, they are paid by their shareholders.

Lloyds ran-up a bill, I believe it was about £900 million for lawyers last year, and one wonders whether it is protecting the banks, or the boards of the banks. I have considerable doubts. I think there were a number of things we need to do to put a stop to this. I think we've got to have a proper Chapter 11 system in this country (where) you cannot bankrupt a company overnight. Every other country has one, we don't have one. I think you've got to remove the Statue of Limitations in bank cases, so that they can't deliberately put off cases indefinitely (until they run) out of time. I think you've got to have a proper Tribunal System set-up to sort-out compensation for the people that have been defrauded. I think it should be compulsory for at least half the board of a bank (to) be qualified (as) bankers. I think you got to put a stop to the unlimited personal guarantees that are outrageously abused.

People with small debts were bankrupted, then had their assets stolen off them - worth many many times their original debt. That is divided-up between the cronies. In my view, the insolvency practitioners and others, (along with) vast sums of money simply disappear. Where did all the money go from the HBOS case? I think probably at least £600 or £700 million went straight abroad. I think we only recovered about £15 million out of a vastly bigger sum at the moment. Who made the money and where is it sitting?

We don't have the capacity or the capability to investigate fraud properly. I think there is a massive problem in our regulatory authorities. The two major ones are the Financial Conduct Authority and the Financial Reporting Counsel…..meant to keep an eye on auditors.

I find it quite extraordinary that the chairman of the Financial Conduct Authority, until the beginning of this month, was a very senior partner of KPMG that did the audits of the HBOS bank. They overlooked a fraud that approached a million pounds, and a multi-multi-billion pound hole….probably approaching £40 billion, in the accounts. (Yet) the man went on to be the chairman of the Financial Conduct Authority.

The chairman of the Financial Reporting Counsel who keeps an eye on the auditors gave KPMG a clean bill of health last year. His previous job was chairman of Lloyds when this was going on. So how on earth do people expect to get justice for a system like this?

Now I go from this meeting this afternoon (to) a meeting with Andrew Bailey who is the chief executive of the Financial Conduct Authority. He has asked me to go and see him and we're going to have a very interesting conversation I think. I don't know quite how we stop this.

In 2013 there was an internal report written within Lloyds called the Turnbull Report. It was commissioned by Lloyds, but they now deny it was commissioned by them. They did (so) because I've got their internal emails (which) lays-out quite clearly what went on within Lloyds bank. (Yet) Lloyds say not only did (they) not commission it, but it it an unsubstantiated report. But it was written three years before they admitted to a fraud that is clearly laid out in this report. So it is pretty well substantiated.

The Financial Conduct Authority has sat on that report for several years….for three years anyway. I've made absolutely certain now that it has gone to the Home Office, it has gone to the Serious Fraud Office, and I hope that something will now be done about it. I need to be called in front of the Treasury Select Committee and asked the right questions, and then I'm under parliamentary privilege, and can reveal most of the information (which) is absolutely devastating.

I think the banks have got into a mindset now that they're above the law and can get away with it, (along with) Insolvency Practitioners, their lawyers, (and) the valuers. How are houses valued at 1.5 million suddenly valued at 400 thousand and flogged off? This is the sort of thing that has gone on time and time again, and is absolutely rotten….and I think Parliament is aware of this. There was meant to be a debate about it in the House of Commons yesterday, but it had to be put off for a fortnight because there was an emergency debate on Syria.

I think that will be an interesting debate. I went to a debate about it a month ago. It's the only time I've heard all seven Parliamentary representatives in the house of Parliament all agree that something had gone extraordinarily wrong within our justice system. It is one thing them agreeing - and another getting some action out of it.

My concern under all of this is (that) I think the Home Office would like to do something about it. I think the Ministry of Justice would. I don't actually think the Treasury wants to do anything about it, and the Treasury controls the Regulatory Authorities. It was interesting that last year the chairman of the Treasury Select Committee, Andrew Tyrie, wrote to Philip Hammond. It's an open letter…. not a secret, and said: 'You cannot go on closing down our inquiries into these things'. He got a letter back from Phillip Hammond (saying) 'Oh yes I can, under the Financial Services Act (or whatever it was) I'm allowed to do this. It was passed by an act of Parliament'.

Well of course it was probably in an Annex, or an appendix to an Annex on page 562, and it certainly wasn't understood by the members of Parliament when they signed-up to it. So we don't have a proper system of regulatory authorities in my view at this time. I also think they're far too small. The estimate quoted by the National Crime Agency (I pressed them into this number)….by the University of Portsmouth in 2016 put the amount of fraud in the country at £193 billion.

We'd pay off our national debt in no time at all if we didn't have it. I don't think it's very expensive to stop it. I think we need to spend probably £500 million…..half of 1% of that amount. You need to set-up at a regional level, proper regional policing level, serious fraud offices which look at the frauds properly.

At the moment, my Superintendent who deals with this, Offshore Fraud Office is also looking at child sexual exploitation. We need a dedicated experienced team to look at these thing and we simply don't have it at the moment at any level of government. The Serious Fraud Office is tiny….paid something like £35, £40 million….to tackle a problem that runs to nearly £200 billion. We've got to spend money on this and it's got to be money not from the Home Office, but from the Treasury. I think it is the Treasury who is putting the brakes on this, and I'm doing everything I can to stop. Anyway, it's got quite a long way to go, this one…..but I think we're closer to getting something done about it than we have been in a very long number of years."

Address to Lithuanian Parliament

INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL
FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

Excellencies, Distinguished Friends…

I will state at the outset that I am both the least qualified person to be addressing you today and, in turn, perhaps the most qualified.

I am least qualified because I have no formal education. I grew up in the African bush throughout the Rhodesian (Zimbabwean) war, leading to ten years as a refugee in the United Kingdom, stateless, without a passport or any nation recognizing me.

I know very little of law or politics in the scholarly sense, and have zero qualification in either profession, however….

I am qualified to address you precisely because I represent the living man, and as such, waive all allegiance to culture or nationality in favour of allegiance to natural justice, pure-truth and the alphabet of the human heart. So I speak to these things today without ambiguity.

It is precisely 'natural justice' which must be recognized as the cornerstone of any emergent human social contract today. Any government, institution or system which fails to recognize this foundational tenet will almost certainly bring about their own catastrophic failure in the socio-economic and socio-ecological upheavals already visiting upon us.

So-called 'terrorism'…….the so-called 'refugee-crisis' and so called 'austerity' are current indicators of the critical and unpredictable nature of our (end of) times.

The fact that many of the most significant crises which inflame our global society are engineered and manipulated by forces amongst us is a fact well known to honourable leaders in government and in civil society. The fact that these forces and vested interests have used the 'colour-of-law' and abstract-economics to infiltrate and diminish the fabric of social welfare is also a fact well known to honourable leaders in government and in civil society.

Both the colour-of-law and abstract economics are the language of the Devil in our midst....that proverbial snake in the Garden of Eden. It is the language of Babel, professing everything to everyone.....understood by nobody. It is the language of the intercessory, the middle-man, the one who would profit from the very misunderstanding which is promulgated. And in the course of modern history whilst good people of the world were recovering from bloody World Wars, trying to find a dignified balance between sanity and survival….this language of obfuscation became the official language of government, ergo the status-quo.

As I am in the middle of a 12-nation pit-stop tour across Europe I have had time to reflect in the past few days on this status quo, precisely because I have been looking out of a car window at the manifest fruits of that status quo.

I will tell you what I saw:

I saw a 21st century Europe being reduced to a homogenized wasteland..... the net-result of systemic industrialization of products, of services and of peoples lives. I saw vehicles stuck in traffic queues for miles and miles with not a single smiling face. I saw acres of billboards selling poisonous and unsustainable products to Mothers and Fathers and their children. I saw thousands of long distance trucks conveying shipments to distant lands....thus imploding their local economies. I saw countless multinational banks.....insurance companies.....real-estate agencies, littering towns and cities. I saw monstrous shopping malls, as big as international airports. It occurred to me that every time I looked at one of those shopping malls I was seeing wholesale government-sponsored demolition of small business folk and their once proud enterprises: shoemakers, greengrocers, cabinet-makers, pharmacists, book-sellers, restauranteurs and hoteliers.

I sensed the broken dreams of thousands of honest family owned businesses annihilated over the past two or three decades by a creeping globalist monoculture which, wittingly and unwittingly, seeks to eradicate family values, community values, societal values and civilizational values. I witnessed all of this rushing past my car window. The bleak legacy of a social economic inferno being wrought upon millions of common people by the European Union and its nefarious raison d'être.

The creeping monoculture I speak about is of course the natural outcome of a civilization which has on the one hand become drunk on excessive consumerism and is on the other hand traumatized into a false-model of scarcity-economics. Where everybody is living both in excess and a state of fear….reliant on the State to ultimately offer salvation. This of course is not only ironic but farcical. I say this because, with all due respect to this gathering of honourable souls, governments and their organs of executive, legislative and juridical process are themselves become the ultimate fiction. Perfectly embodying that which is inorganic, soulless....that which is bereft of conscience. They are the aggregate of generational kingly and priestly lines, promulgating agendas of control and manipulation. Their critical remit – the control and harvest of human time and energy.

Government is become the de facto enemy of living men and women of the living soil. At least that is what most common people think most of the time, when they are being over-taxed, under-paid and relentlessly penalized by commercial agents masquerading as 'peace-officers' and bullied by the petty-tyranny of officialdom.

As a marginally jaded veteran activist cum citizen diplomat, I have for twenty years traversed the globe meeting and conversing with the full socio-political spectrum: from 'terrorists' to Heads-of-State. I have learned to understand much of the commonality cleft between both sides of the power equation. I should also add here that peace-activists and concerned citizens are nowadays labelled as domestic terrorists with power of the State seeking to crush dissenting voices……..voices which merely argue for sane relationship between governance and citizenry and the restoration of human dignity and exchange in all dealings thereof.

Where the State should be serving its mandate in the best interests of citizens it all too often does precisely the opposite. It does so by playing into the hands of central banking cartels and vested interests.....and clicking its heels not to the mandate of living-souls but rather to the dictates of monopolizing institutions like the European Union, the IMF, the World Health Organisation….and so on.

Every sane citizen knows that in the 21st century the State has unwittingly become servant of transnational and transcultural interests, and is now the mechanistic destroyer of the fabric of their own national traditions and cultural integrity. The Tavistock Institute and Fabian cloisters assured that trajectory generations ago, leading to the contemporaneous efforts of such perfidious institutions as 'The Open Society' courtesy of George Soros and his overlords.

The destruction I am referring to emerges in diametric proportion to the State's capacity to act in derogation and abrogation of civil liberties, human rights, civil rights, natural rights and plain common sense. This brings us to where people of the world have had enough! Where the State assaults the lives of common people with arbitrary statutes and codes infringing all dignity while seeking to commercialize and penalize us at every turn.

Since when did people of the world sanction or vote for government to tell them what they can or cannot eat? How their children should be educated? Whether they or their families should be vaccinated with toxins? Whether or not women may choose to have abortions? When they can choose to retire from work? How they may or may not choose to heal their own ailments…. or what plant they may smoke in the sanctity of their own home.

Law and Natural Justice can be summarized in one sentence; perfectly……'cause no harm, loss, or injury to another living soul and conduct no fraud in your transactions.' So long as a human beings conduct themselves according to this simple dictum then there will never be a crime nor will there ever be a victim…. there will only be a perfect and natural social order.

By contrast, in its efforts to control, harvest and monetize humanity – 'government' has dreamt into existence millions of 'laws' which are not laws at all. They are statutory provision, codes or ordinances which have essentially infiltrated the law books at the bidding of unelected officials, and by the assent of turgid bureaucrats.

The immoral stench of this lawless globalist behemoth as it shreds our sensitivities and our sensibilities, is why awakened 'citizens' have had enough and no longer wish to play the 'civilization' game. Because they see how unbearably uncivilized our world has become...how brutalized and desensitized it has become. Because no matter how uneducated or unsophisticated they may be, good people of the world still feel it in their common bones when the fabric of human-spirit is being defiled, molested and compromised.

Natural Justice is the only recourse left to a world which is caught up in statutory conflagration and left on the brink of socioeconomic and socioecological meltdown.

Listen to the people, not because they are making loud enough noises.....but because listening to the people and acting therefrom is the very reason you are elected parliamentarians and political representatives. The dispensation of 'natural justice' is where the white-noise of our civilizational hum becomes its most noble song. Listen closely and listen well. Because governments that do not do so will be held to task and held to account in the coming days of planetary psycho-cultural upheaval. The game is changing – as is the playing-field. Both will favour living-men and living-women of the living soil over fictitious corporations masquerading as governments.

The International Tribunal for Natural Justice is readying for that call, and we welcome establishing cogent dialogue with all citizens, institutions, governments, and peoples of the world wishing to see restoration of the rule of law and a return to natural justice.

Thank you for the kind invitation to address this august body.

Let Right Be Done!

Pedophilia & Empire: Satan, Sodomy & the Deep State

EXTRACTED TEXT: CHAPTER 10

Book by Joachim Hagopian

ANATOMY OF THE LUCIFERIAN ELITE'S GLOBAL CHILD SEX TRAFFICKING PEDOPHILE

To corroborate already irrefutable evidence that the CIA acts as the procuring pimps supplying the elite with child sex slaves comes CIA whistleblower John Kiriakou. He spent two years in prison for spilling the beans on the illegal Bush-Cheney-CIA enhanced torture methods. His latest revelation discloses that as a CIA agent, it was his duty to deliver child sex slaves to pedophile VIPs.[i] Multiple sources are all saying the same thing. Just as with drugs, arms and body parts, the CIA is the main dealer in selling children as well.

Once the new millennium White House shift took over, the Bush 2-Cheney neocons proved "same as the old boss" Bush 1 and Clinton. Right after their preplanned 9/11, US Empire was at it again, exploiting their "new Pearl Harbor"[ii] to full advantage using their war machine-on-steroids to simultaneously invade Afghanistan and Iraq while (per General Wesley Clark) "taking down 7 countries in 5 years."[iii] As those costly quagmire wars dragged right into the seamless Obama regime, the CIA and Soros' color revolutions (otherwise known as Arab Spring) began popping up to spark yet more regime change proxy wars,[iv] murdering and displacing millions of mostly Muslims from ravaged homelands in Syria, Libya, Ukraine, Yemen, Somalia, Sudan and beyond.[v]

In Libya in 2011 the same pattern that "balkanized" Yugoslavia was brutally replicated by the same prime suspects with virtually the same results.[vi] An aggressive NATO-US bombing intervention, again unleashing al Qaeda terrorists to wreak further havoc[vii] to destroy Gaddafi's plan to unite Africa under his gold backed dinar instead of the US petrodollar, plunging once prosperous, oil-rich, emerging independent regional leader of a nation overnight into violently plundered failed state status…[viii] as Luciferian Hillary's mission accomplished.[ix] Evidence of collusion involving al Qaeda/ISIS,[x] the Vatican, various "humanitarian" NGOs like USAID and CIA again resurfaced, forcing exploited Libyan migrants into human trafficking rings.[xi] George Soros, the global kingpin of US hedge fund speculators, uses his massive billions to fund NGOs that are now directly involved in human sex trafficking as well as financing terrorism.[xii]

And the latest bombshell is Soros' top hedge fund manager in the US finance capital New York City has been running a sex slave operation from his own Manhattan penthouse sex dungeon. According to a $27 million lawsuit filed by three Florida models, two of whom were former Playboy bunnies, 62-year old Howard "Howie" Rubin lured the women to New York through two female employees also named in the lawsuit who'd make initial contact on Instagram and Whatsapp.[xiii] Rubin purchased his $8 million penthouse apartment for the special purpose of raping and beating beautiful women as his very own sex slaves and then go back home to his wife and kids on the Upper East Side. The sexual predator had his two model-type employees do his bidding, both similarly roughed up before being hired to act as his slave procurers. The same brutal tactics are deployed as in any large scale sex trafficking operation, using procurers, money and a high rolling good time as bait and switch to entice and trap the preyed upon, drugged and powerless victims.

Once the slaves were flown to the Big Apple, they'd taxi to the penthouse where one of his accomplices would suddenly confront the women needing to sign non-disclosure agreements.[xiv] Next Rubin would wine and dine them with polite, respectful conversation at a posh Manhattan restaurant. But once they returned to Rubin's apartment, he'd slip a drug into their drink, gag and bound them and then violently assault them in his secret sex dungeon. Similar to the audio recording making the internet rounds several months ago of a voice identical to alleged pedophile John Podesta screaming at the top of his lungs at a poor traumatized little kid to call him "daddy,"[xv] one of the Rubin plaintiffs was so severely beaten by Howie demanding that she call him "daddy" that she passed out.[xvi] Another sick quote while continuing to punch the woman was, "Howie is the daddy. The daddy has to beat his baby." Just before attacking them, two of the three victims state that Rubin yelled, "I'm going to rape you like I rape my daughter." One of the woman maintains she was raped with a cattle prod. Again, many of the same methods Rubin used to torture his victims come straight out of the CIA Monarch mind control playbook, strongly suggesting the possibility that the billionaire's secret dark side may be rooted in Illuminati upbringing or MK Ultra brainwash programming.

Rubin managed to cover up his reprehensible crimes by paying them $5,000 each time in hush money along with whatever medical expenses were accrued.[xvii] Though thus far only three women have filed suit, Rubin likely victimized others as well. This alleged sex slave violence that began in 2016 must have occurred just months after Rubin left Soros' Mortgage-Back Securities Fund that he'd been managing during the seven years prior to 2015. Following a few short weeks on the heels of a fellow rapist's colossal downfall in Hollywood, Harvey Weinstein's years of sadistically misusing his raw, brutish power to also humiliate, terrorize, degrade and control his female victims brought about his own self-undoing.[xviii] And then just days ago perennial A-list actor Kevin Spacey suddenly got brave enough to cowardly hide behind the normative status of homosexuality to come out in his feeble attempt to escape judgment as yet another predatory pedophile.[xix] And just like Harvey before him, Spacey's "House of Cards" has fallen as a parade of more victims are emerging from the shadows.[xx] Turns out his Spacey Foundation mentoring young children hungry for acting careers may be a cover for his boy toy trafficking gig.[xxi] Recall that Kevin was also a Lolita Express frequent flyer down to Epstein's sex slave island. The rapists' days of ruling Hollywood are over as the parade of sexual predators become "flavor of the week" karmic payback.

The days when these kind of crimes and atrocities historically perpetrated by violently aggressive oppressors regularly hurting and violating others with lesser power are finally being exposed. This heinous behavior will no longer be tolerated or accepted like it has for so long. Unlike before, those who willfully harm others because they've always gotten away with it will now begin paying a far more serious consequence. And as the wake-up call of truth descends upon the barbarians, the new day that's dawning is empowering the meek and less powerful to come forth and speak up, seeking long overdue justice and accountability, regardless of life position, station or power differential. And this dynamic is no more embodied than in the systematic rape, torture and murder of kids.

But we still have a long ways to go. Victims of US wars fleeing for their lives often wind up as refugees in nearby surrounding nations – especially Turkey (with 2.8 homeless Syrians), Lebanon (over 1 million Syrians) and Jordan (two thirds of a million),[xxii] but also Egypt, Italy, Greece and the Balkans as massive migratory transit zones. These countries in recent years have absorbed millions of Middle Eastern and African refugees, the largest human migration since history's deadliest war – WWII, and at 65.6 million, currently more people on earth are displaced than any prior time in human history.[xxiii] These desperate, extreme conditions manufactured by the elite are ideal for their hired vultures to have "easy pickings" separating children from their parents.[xxiv] The CIA, US Military Intelligence, Mossad and MI6 typically coordinate these large scale child procurement black ops worldwide. From off the street, the seediest, low life abductors from various NGOs and CIA front company operatives parasitically converge on hundreds of overcrowded, inhumane refugee camps and, for the right price, the predators pluck children from the chaotic crowds and funnel them straight into the sex slave pipeline.[xxv] Or destitute parents fall victim to the con game that selling their daughters as child brides promises a better life for them.[xxvi] The Islamic State terrorists, also created by elitist CIA design, routinely kidnap and enslave women and children for their brutal debauchery and sadistic torture as well.[xxvii] Rich Gulf State predators openly shop for sex slaves in Syria, Egypt and Turkey. Abduction for child soldiers is another common practice.[xxviii] Nations in south central Asia are nearly just as bad, in India, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Nepal.[xxix] Tourism for pedophiles protected and sanctioned by US State Department and CIA is covered next as another big business taking place in Asia where children forced into sex slavery are servicing scummy foreigners, especially in Myanmar, Philippines, Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam and Thailand.[xxx]

2004's day after Christmas tsunami in the Indian Ocean, so catastrophic killing nearly a quarter million people, was seized upon by soulless pedophiles preying on defenseless children. Relief workers reported that an inordinate number of young Swedish boys mysteriously went missing in Thailand's southern Phuket Province, especially known for sex tourism and human trafficking.[xxxi] Meanwhile, in places like India, Saudi Arabia and United Arab Emirates blue eyed blonde boys are a most sought after preference. In Indonesia's Aceh Province where the tsunami damage was most severe, police believe orphaned and separated children were abducted and moved by traffickers to other islands and nearby Malaysia. Nearly 100 out of the 565 total people missing were under 13. Similarly, right after Bali's 2002 car bombing, a sudden spike in missing orphaned children again occurred due to suspected foreign pedophiles. Former naval intelligence officer and veteran investigative journalist Wayne Madsen wrote a series of scathing articles examining this phenomenon of missing Asian children amidst an infestation of foreign child sex predators that regularly travel or have taken up residence in the Far East.[xxxii]

Many of these pedophiles from America, Europe and Australia are public servants working within their national government agencies. An official from Australia's Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade was recalled back to Australia after an incident with an Indonesian boy in 1984, but remained an employee with diplomatic immunity and passport for almost another dozen years before he resigned.[xxxiii] After leaving his government post, he returned to Indonesia and was openly living with underage boys when he was busted yet again, but this time his government tenure wasn't there to bail him out of trouble. After receiving a 13-year prison sentence the day before, he hung himself in his Bali jail cell. Two Australian teachers who were child rapists were allowed passports to flee Cambodia and Thailand to escape justice. The Australian embassy in Cambodia has a reputation for regularly covering up cases of accused diplomats raping local children.

In his first term in office pedo boy George W. Bush signed into law tough anti-trafficking legislation only to pay lip service to it thereafter. The get tough on pedo-peddling was merely an excuse to pour money into making it easier for child rapists to rape. The State Department embassy in Bangkok, second largest in Asia to Tokyo, has long held a scandalous reputation protecting their predators posing as State Department employees. The CIA station in Bangkok is also second to Tokyo in size, and closely works together to maintain overseas pedo operations. A 2007 Madsen article profiles the then current US ambassador to Thailand Ralph ("Skip") Boyce, a career State Department diplomat stationed in many Asian countries including serving as the former ambassador to Indonesia.[xxxiv] Wherever he was, Boyce repeatedly allowed pedophiles to thrive under his watch despite coming under heat for willfully placing Thai children in harm's way to known predators. Both his consul general and his American Citizens Services chief squelched pedophile investigations of the Bangkok embassy by Thai police. After a multiple decade career, Boyce finally retired in December 2007. But the pedophilia problem in the State Department and US government remains systemic.

Robert Finnegan, former Jakarta Post English editor, maintains he was physically threatened on embassy premises by security officers for asking questions regarding then Indonesian Ambassador Boyce's apparent tolerance towards pedophilia. Finnegan revealed that Boyce hired two Indonesian nationals, one a CIA asset, to procure underage children for sex with embassy personnel.[xxxv] For outing him, Boyce had Finnegan's journalist visa revoked, forcing him to return to the States despite having an Indonesian wife. The State Department uses diplomatic immunity as carte blanche license to break laws raping children all over the world. Jakarta embassy sources anonymously confirmed Finnegan's revelations that State Department policy keeps circulating pedophiles throughout Asian countries. One embassy worker in Phnom Penh openly living with a young boy from Cambodia and another from Laos was transferred to the small Muslim nation Brunei. When the government discovered his living arrangement, the US shipped him off to Dhaka, Bangladesh, another pedo-magnet. Meanwhile, per SOP the CIA maintains pedo dossiers on hundreds if not thousands of State Department personnel for blackmail purposes.

Chief procurer of little boys in Bangkok for the embassy diplomatic corps was John Mark Karr, an American schoolteacher once married to a 13-year old and busted in 2001 for child pornography back in the States, but jumped bail to evade the law and for the next several years floated from pedo haven to pedo haven – Costa Rica, the Netherlands, Honduras, South Korea, until he wound up in Bangkok teaching English at several international schools to foreign and wealthy Thai children.[xxxvi] But it appeared his sexual improprieties with children had finally caught up to him when the Bangkok police arrested him in 2006. Then a most bizarre twist of events suddenly, suspiciously freed

Karr. The pedophile was sent back flying un-handcuffed on business class to the United States greeted by huge headlines that he was the admitted killer of little 6-year old Jon Benet Ramsey back in 1996 Colorado. In retrospect, it appears that was simply a contrived federal ploy to extricate him from his Thai jail cell but more importantly distance him from the pedophiles he was running amuck with at the Bangkok embassy that Karr was alleged to be supplying with small children. Then in October 2006 since no DNA evidence matched Karr's, he was set free yet again, despite his "false confession" and despite the child porn charges a half decade earlier that made him a fugitive. Miraculously those charges were thrown out because his old porn filled computer confiscated back in 2001 had suspiciously grown legs and disappeared from the Sonoma County, California evidence room.

In 2008 Karr was allegedly arrested for domestic violence toward a supposed girlfriend at his parent's Atlanta home. Then in 2010 he resurfaced as a transgendered woman with a wacky Jon Benet cult he called the Immaculates, cyberstalking and threatening to kill one of 30 alleged procurers of his Jon Benet lookalikes.[xxxvii] These days the unpunished serial pedophile is allegedly a woman in order to make for easier access to 6-year old girls as his potential cult recruits. All of this could be smoke and mirrors to obscure the bottom line that Karr back in Thailand was living in a very upscale Bangkok neighborhood (despite foreign media claims he lived in seedy, pimp and drug dealing squalor) in extreme close proximity to the Danish and Austrian embassies, the Thai-German Cultural Center and Goethe Institute and Joint US-Thai Military Assistance Group. Wayne Madsen tracked Karr's residence down and found that he was living amongst foreign diplomats, cultural mission staff and US Special Forces personnel, and most likely being wined and dined by fellow residents that shared his hankering for little kids.[xxxviii] Under the auspices of both the CIA and State Department, it's been confirmed that Karr provided children for sexual liaisons with visiting American VIPs that included Congress members.[xxxix] Because John Mark Karr had the damaging goods on so many of his elite clientele, he was whisked away out of Thailand using the Jon Benet lie.

While the CIA, State Department and NGOs are all paid big bucks to ostensibly fight pedophilia and child trafficking, they along with a complicit MSM actually protect child rapists like Karr and engage in character assassination and slander against good people who actually dedicate their lives to protecting at risk children. Madsen extensively covered what happens to the true child advocates on a mission to rid these safe havens from pedophiles when they become too successful, showcasing two American crusaders independently working in pedo-infested Pattaya, an infamous sex resort on the Thai south coast. Each child advocate – Sean Parlaman and Father Ray Brennan were heroes who paid with their lives after being maliciously targeted by the pro-pedophile establishment.[xl] Peril befalls the righteous do-gooders including truth tellers from the press wanting to expose this pervasive criminality in the pedophilia empire.

While Wayne Madsen was investigating this story, former editor of the Japan Times Weekly, longtime respected journalist and child activist in Asia as well, Yoichi Shimatsu told him:

Reporters asking too many questions about pedophiles in Southeast Asia are likely to end up with a bullet in their head.[xli]

Because so much money is generated through child sex enslavement, the strategy of powerful child raping profiteers is/was accusing activists actually saving children of being pedophiles. This diabolical scheme has tragically proven all too effective. So the elite goes out of its way to protect the guilty slime while destroying the saints most dedicated to protecting children. Though the devil's earthly dominion may seemingly reward the Luciferians, the tables are turning.

But then there's Howard Gutman, Hillary's ambassador to Belgium in Brussels, another pedo paradise, allowed to repeatedly act out engaging in sex with underage boys. But his pedophile boss squelched the investigation of Gutman and his security detail involving 8 separate cases, consistently shielding them from further exposure and arrest, keeping the ambassador on his job till the end of his term.[xlii] Of course this should come as no surprise, considering word has it Hillary Clinton's sex video with her lover Huma Abedin both engaging in a lesbo threesome with an underage girl at Epstein's Sex Slave Island discovered last fall on the pedo-jailbird Anthony Weiner's laptop[xliii] is now about to go public via WikiLeaks.[xliv] For many decades this kind of flagrant government debauchery and cover-ups have been so rampant throughout the world, only confirming a much wider pedophilia trafficking network long held in place by the Washington-London-Rome-Brussels axis-of-evil ensuring child rapists in powerful places continue getting away with destroying children's lives. But it appears those days may be over.

OPENING STATEMENT FROM

Lina Helstein

COMMISSIONER TO THE INTERNATIONAL TRIBUNAL FOR NATURAL JUSTICE

This Commission of Inquiry proved wholly that ITNJ has matured during the last two years. It is an organization beginning to have real influence on practical events in the world as they are working to stop further expansion of fraud in all spheres of human life.

All witnesses who appeared in London to give their testimony, and those that joined online via weblinks, were sharing informative information about their experiences with human trafficking and child sexual abuse, as well as subjects related to these key themes. Looking into the eyes of the witnesses as they gave testimony brought a humanity to their words, unlike the 'talking heads' one sees on TV.

They made it clear that human trafficking and child sexual abuse are key themes in today's fraud mutation. The courts are now complicit in these acts by using false bankruptcy cases to strip people of their wealth and property, leaving them with no means of survival and virtually turning them into slaves for the system. The members of these compromised courts are then using this money for their own illicit means. With this Commission the ITNJ is stepping forward to say, "No more!"

With that purpose in mind, the Eastern European Chapter of the ITNJ has come together and proposes a united effort of the ITNJ, litigants of Lithuania, UK, and other countries, to review these illegal bankruptcy cases, repealing them through law, and making these people whole again. We can then turn these modern day slaves into a united group who can help more souls going through the same vicious illegal system. Once this is brought into the light, the courts can no longer continue this abhorrent practice.

Today Eastern Europe is entrenched in illegal bankruptcies and wealth stripping. The Western world has great experience in how these frauds are perpetrated and the means to stop them, and the Eastern world has a great desire to end the expansion of this economical enslavement.

Working together we can bring an end to this scourge!

SILENCE FROM THE VATICAN

Article by Connie Broussard

Cardinal George Pell of Australia is the highest-ranking Vatican official (the Vatican's Treasurer, hand-picked by Pope Francis) to stand trial on multiple charges that he sexually abused minors in his care dating back to the 1970s.

Pell was officially charged in 2017, and in May of 2018 appeared in court before Melbourne Magistrate Belinda Wallington, at which time he pleaded not guilty to alleged historic sexual abuse. These alleged offenses occurred from the 1970s to the 1990s, starting in the Melbourne area where he was a priest, and later, after he became the archbishop.

THE SECOND BIGGEST STORY HERE IS THE VATICAN'S SILENCE AS ONE OF ITS OWN FACES TRIAL FOR SEXUAL ABUSE

The fact that the Holy See has not come forward with protest that a prince of the church will stand trial before a civil magistrate is historically unheard of. It could very well be the turning point in the long chronicle of compelling accountability by church leaders. This silence comes at the same time Pope Francis issued a personal apology for his own mishandling of clergy sex abuse allegations in Chile. Such a statement is not only unprecedented, but would have been unthinkable in an earlier era of the Catholic Church's history. Pope Francis admitted, 'grave error' in his judgment, adding: "I confess this caused me pain and shame." He also invited the victims to come before him in Rome so he may beg their forgiveness.

Australia's most senior Catholic figure, Pell, in recent years has come under scrutiny for his actions as archbishop by a government-authorized investigation into how the Catholic Church and other institutions have responded to allegations of the sexual abuse of children.

A report issued in late 2017 by Australia's Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse revealed that in Australia, 7% of Catholic priests were accused of sexually abusing children over the past several decades. Cardinal Pell admitted in testimony to that commission that he had made mistakes by believing priests rather than those who had said they were abused. He testified then via a video-link from the Vatican and vowed to help end the rash of suicides that has afflicted abuse victims and their families in his hometown of Ballarat.

Pell has been on a leave of absence from his high-level Vatican post and has returned to Australia to fight the criminal charges filed against him. His committal hearing is believed to have been one of the longest ever in the Australian state of Victoria, of which the first 10 days were heard in closed-session as Pell's accusers were questioned.

Not much more is known about the charges against Pell as lawyers for both the prosecution and the defense have been barred from sharing any details, however, reports suggest that the most serious matters relate to two accusers. One says the alleged sexual abuse took place in a Ballarat cinema in the 1970s when Pell was a priest, and the second victim alleges he was sexually assaulted at Melbourne's St. Patrick's Cathedral in the 1990s, at which point Pell was the Archbishop of Melbourne.

There were other charges dropped shortly before the committal hearing in March of 2018 after one accuser died in January and yet another was determined to be medically unfit to give evidence.

Although the Magistrate dropped several of the charges, she did find enough evidence was presented during the pre-trial hearings to take the case to trial. Cardinal Pell was granted bail until his next court hearing and has already surrendered his passport and is not allowed to leave the country. His attorneys were granted a request that the two allegations of child sex abuse be handled in two separate trials.

The decision to send Pell's case to trial is a blow to an already contentious Catholic Church, which has been fighting allegation of sexual abuse amid its clergy for decades. Thousands of cases around the world have led to investigations and convictions in countries including the United States, Canada, Ireland and Australia.

Mentioned earlier, Australia's Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse made recommendations that the Vatican should change ancient canon laws in order to reduce the risk of future sexual abuse. These included making celibacy voluntary for priests, and any abuse admission made during confession must be reported to the police immediately.

Pell's guilt or innocence remains to be seen, but this episode will go down as the historical moment when the church's concern for its reputation was placed back in context where it belongs. Add to that the extraordinary apology from the Holy Father; it surely marks a point of great transformation for the church. Past are the days when the church holds itself accountable on to its own internal processes and laws. Hopefully they will be past... forever.

SIDE NOTE FROM ROBERT DAVID STEELE

"According to Jack and Diane Ruhl of the National Catholic Reporter, who decided to research this particular topic, since 1950 the Vatican has spent a disgusting $3,994,797,060.10. That's nearly $4 billion to keep things hush hush. That number may even be a bit conservative, as we cannot know for sure the agreed upon 'under the table' amount.

The figure is based on a three-month investigation of data, which includes a review of over 7,800 articles from LexisNexis Academic and NCR databases and information from BishopAccountability.org. Reports from the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops were also used."

THE FORMAL RATIFICATION OF THE

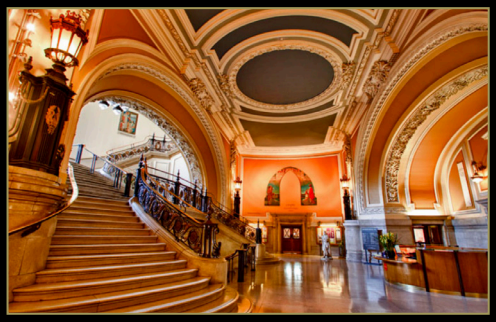

ITNJ TREATY AND CONSTITUTION

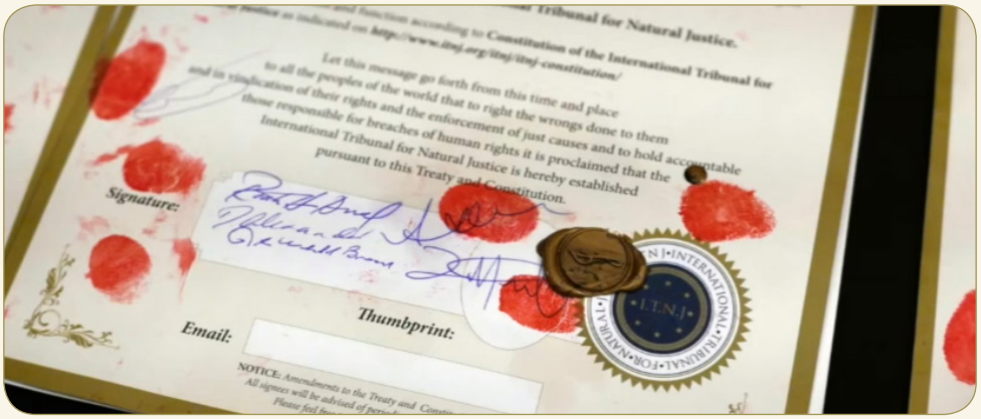

IN WESTMINSTER CENTRAL HALL

LONDON - 15TH JUNE 2015

The formal ratification of the ITNJ Treaty and Constitution took place on the 15th of June 2015 in Westminster Central Hall in London, England.

This was planned to coincide with the 800th anniversary of the signing of Magna Carta.

It is ironic that on this auspicious day, whilst the Queen of England and US President Barak Obama led international dignitaries in celebrations at Runnymede (the location of Magna Carta), a large group of international judges, lawyers, and free and sovereign men and women of the world gathered together in the heart of London's establishment.

They gathered in force, a stones throw from where Kings and Queens have been enthroned for a thousand years, in order to inaugurate a tribunal which emerges as a lawful planetary jurisdiction wherein the world may seek remedy and justice according to the rule of law. 'Rule of law' which has not been afforded people or planet since the world-at-large was corporatized by covert and vested interests perpetrating a multi-generational global conspiracy of fraud and treason.

The ITNJ founders and committee selected Westminster as the location for officiation for this very reason.

Committee chapters and friendly observers from around the world joined via video-link from as far afield as Kenya, Tanzania, Lithuania, Canada, USA, Southern Africa, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Netherlands, Belgium, Indonesia, Peru, Costa Rica, Spain, Portugal, Philippines, Russia, Siberia, Hungary, Poland, Mexico, and others.

We, according to the solemn duty as aforesaid, and per the dictate of conscience, ratify the present treaty with the earnest intention that truth and reason be restored to the delivery of justice in the world.

And so, recognising that in Truth:

i. Law in its purest form requires nothing more or less than that we each do no harm.

ii. Harm in any form is only ever caused by natural persons, regardless of whether or not the natural person may claim to be operating under corporate dictate, colour of law, or otherwise.

iii. Harm in any form is only ever capable of being suffered by natural persons, regardless of whether or not the harm suffered may have been so suffered through a natural person's artificial externalities.

iv. Neither corporate immunity, nor colour of right, can indemnify a natural person for harm caused to another.

v. No natural person is bound by the unlawful ruling of a de facto court where they are not a consenting party with full knowledge of the manner in which their consent is given.

We the natural men and women of the world, pursuant to the ultimate goal of realising equal rights and dignity for each member of the human family, HEREBY MANDATE the International Tribunal for Natural Justice.

WHAT FUTURE FOR OUR CHILDREN IN A DEBT-LADEN AND LAWLESS WORLD?

Article by Justin Walker

WHY DO WE ALL COUNTENANCE A POLITICAL, LEGAL AND ECONOMIC SYSTEM THAT CAN ONLY EXTEND A FUTURE OF ABSOLUTE MISERY, POVERTY AND ENSLAVEMENT FOR OUR CHILDREN?

The ITNJ Judicial Commission of Inquiry into Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse was set up because our supposedly 'governed' world allows eight million children a year to be unlawfully scooped up and placed into appalling conditions of slavery. Think about it…that's 22,000 children a day who suddenly have their liberties taken away from them as they are placed into captivity that in most cases leads to death within two years. The lucky ones become labour slaves and sex slaves; the unlucky ones are tortured, murdered and their body parts exploited and traded for nefarious purposes.

It's quite simply appalling that every one of us is allowing this to happen because of our collective ignorance, apathy and, it has to be said, our utter dereliction of our moral responsibilities as human-beings. The obvious questions we should all be asking are: what sort of sick and twisted mind-set is allowing all of this to happen? Just how are the perpetrators being allowed to get away with what they're doing? And what are the solutions that we all can get involved with to bring this unspeakable criminality to an abrupt end?

SO, WHO ARE THE PERPETRATORS – WHAT IS ACTUALLY GOING ON?

The global internet is awash with lots of so-called 'conspiracy theories' – whilst many are definitely heading in the right direction, there are also many which have been deliberately put out there to distract people from discovering the very simple truth behind everything. And what is that very simple truth? It is that this appalling mind-set that's behind global slavery and child sex abuse is only in power because we have all foolishly given up and surrendered our absolute and God-given sovereign right to control for the common good, our own money supply, and our own legal system.

The prime aim of this criminal and elitist financial cabal is to seek all-out global governance on their corporate and fascist terms. To achieve this Orwellian nightmare, they have seized control of the financial and legal institutions of the world to the extent that nearly every human-being on the planet is now affected to some degree in a very negative way. And this outright control only exists because they have been allowed (courtesy of our corrupted politicians) to get away with absolutely massive fraud, deception and entrapment. And why is that? Because we have all been deliberately dumbed down and distracted by today's modern so-called 'culture' and educated by a completely controlled and totally flawed academia. We have all been purposefully put to sleep whilst evil – and I use that word quite deliberately – is allowed to prevail all around us.

So, how big is this enemy we're all up against and are they actually beatable? After many years of detailed research the picture is now becoming much clearer. Networking through a myriad of secret societies, so-called academic think-tanks (like the Bilderberg Group and the Council on Foreign Relations) and exclusive membership clubs, this cabal probably numbers no more than eight to ten thousand key people throughout the world. It's true they have a million or so of highly paid 'useful idiots' who do their bidding (and some are now thankfully whistle-blowing and working against their 'masters'), but the hard 'core' is absolutely tiny in number when compared to the 7.6 billion of us in the world.

The last thing we should do is give these elitists any sort of admiration and respect – we must not give these common criminals 'superhuman' powers as some ridiculous conspiracy theories would have you believe. They are certainly clever, cunning and manipulative but, when we lift back the curtain to expose them for who they really are, we will simply see a bunch of sad corporate and banking megalomaniacs, many of whom don't actually like each other and some of whom are actually involved in revolting acts including actual Satanic rituals involving the abuse and deaths of children! The only reason we are at their beck and call is that we are collectively ignorant of the proven truth about money creation and money supply, not to mention how the world's legal systems have been taken over by the vested corporate interests of the so-called 'one per cent' (actually, it's more like 0.00001%!).

What follows are now the two proven solutions needed to defeat these global corporate and financial elitists in one fell swoop and so put to an end human trafficking and child sex abuse – their house of cards will collapse completely in less than three years if we all come together quickly on this common platform of truth, backed up by the determination to implement these two proven solutions in the shortest possible time.

With the City of London being the key centre for this criminal financial control of the world (along with the virtually unknown Bank for International Settlements (BIS) in Basle, Switzerland), these two solutions will now be described from a British perspective…but what we do here in the United Kingdom can be done quickly and effectively in every country of the world in a very short period of time thanks to social media – all that is missing is knowledge and a commitment from each and every one of us to educate and enthuse our friends, neighbours and work colleagues with the irrefutable evidence and the two proven solutions that now follow.

MONEY CREATION AND MONEY SUPPLY… OUR SUPREME IGNORANCE PREVAILS!

The Bank for International Settlements – the BIS – now, there's a name that's not on everyone's lips. Mention the IMF, the OECD or the World Bank and a fair number of people have heard of these international financial institutions but probably can't tell you what they actually do. But when it comes to the BIS, barely one-per-cent of the British people have ever heard of it…and even if they've heard of it, they can't tell you what it does…and that includes most of our completely useless and bought politicians!

The BIS describes itself as the central bank for all the central banks of the world. It is a privately controlled institution that has given itself diplomatic immunity. It is highly secretive and the minutes of its high-level meetings are never made public. It controls sixty of the world's central banks, including the Bank of England, the Federal Reserve and the European Central Bank; and it oversees over 95% of the world's money supply. Not bad for an institution that hardly anyone has ever heard of.

This network of BIS controlled central banks is the way the elitist 'one per cent' effectively controls the world's money supply. Professor Carroll Quigley, the noted historian and mentor for President Bill Clinton and one-time trusted insider by the 'one per cent', wrote in his book Tragedy & Hope: A History of the World in Our Time:

"The powers of financial capitalism had another far-reaching aim, nothing less than to create a world system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world as a whole. This system was to be controlled in a feudalist fashion by the central banks of the world acting in concert, by secret agreements, arrived at infrequent private meetings and conferences. The apex of the system was the Bank for International Settlements in Basle, Switzerland, a private bank owned and controlled by the world's central banks which were themselves private corporations. The growth of financial capitalism made possible a centralization of world economic control and use of this power for the direct benefit of financiers and the indirect injury of all other economic groups."

Around twelve of the most important central bank governors, including our own Mark Carney from the Bank of England, meet in complete secrecy every two months. Here, with the discreet involvement and influence of the key banking dynasties (such as the Rothschild, Morgan, Oppenheim, Lehman, Warburg and Rockefeller families), these governors, who are not democratically elected nor are they fully accountable national representatives, effectively decide on the strategic liquidity needed for the world's economy. However, Professor Quigley did go on to write:

"It must not be felt that these heads of the world's chief central banks were themselves substantive powers in world finance. They were not. Rather, they were the technicians and agents of the dominant investment bankers of their own countries, who had raised them up and were perfectly capable of throwing them down. The substantive financial powers of the world were in the hands of these investment bankers (also called 'international' or 'merchants' bankers) who renamed largely behind the scenes in their own unincorporated banks. These formed a system of international cooperation and national dominance which was more private, more powerful, and more secret than that of their agents in the central banks..."

So, there we have it – a handful of very powerful financial and corporate dynastic oligarchs decide how much, or more accurately, how little money the world has to spend. And this is why we see children sold into sex slavery; forced to work in sweat shops; compelled to scour rubbish tips to scrape some sort of existence; and why 800 children under the age of five die a day due to dirty and diseased water. And in the meantime, the sixty-two richest people in the world have as much money as almost half of the world's population, that's three and a half billion people!! But the worst of it is this: these controlling bankers have (courtesy of bought and corrupted politicians passing the necessary legislation through their parliaments) the absolute right to create money completely out of thin air as debt and to then add interest on something that doesn't actually exist (usury). It's not money based on gold or assets, it's based on absolutely nothing at all. If we, the ordinary people, did this we would go to prison for fraud. But not the bankers and financiers based in the City of London – here's what the Bank of England said in its Spring Quarterly Bulletin in 2014:

"In the modern economy, most money takes the form of bank deposits. But how those bank deposits are created is often misunderstood: the principal way is through commercial banks making loans. Whenever a bank makes a loan, it simultaneously creates a matching deposit in the borrower's bank account, thereby creating new money."

Come on people, we are all being scammed globally… and the children of the world are suffering for it! Apparently, the world is now in debt to the tune of $164 trillion thanks to the bankers being able to create their money completely out of thin air as debt – and it is this completely insane system of money creation and money supply that's given these criminals the 'power' to dictate terms to the sovereign peoples of the world as they advance their plans for global corporate governance – including, of course, their European project, the European Union. Just why on earth do we put up with all this blatant criminality that's affecting all our lives and the lives of our children, the next generation.

THE FIRST SOLUTION: RESTORING SOVEREIGN NATIONAL CREDIT… OR REAL MONEY IN OTHER WORDS!

This is the completely proven solution to money creation and money supply that the corrupted and cowardly system-serving politicians, economists and bankers will not tell you about. It is this: any government of a sovereign nation does not have to borrow money from the private financial sector, nor does it have to directly tax its citizens to raise the revenue it needs. A government of a sovereign nation has the simple and absolute right to create, issue and control all of its own money through its treasury and not its central bank. This is money that is both debt-free and interest-free as it is based entirely on the wealth and labour potential (creativity) of that nation. This fiscal arrangement (known by money reformers today as Sovereign National Credit) is recognized within HM Treasury as M0 (zero) at 100%...and it was last practised on a major scale by the Treasury to save the nation from economic collapse at the outbreak of the First World War.

Please look up the historical facts about the 1914 Treasury-issued Bradbury Pound which we were alerted to by a retired Director of the Bank of England who informed us that if the British people restored this simple fiscal measure, all of Britain's economic woes would be sorted in one go! Certainly, the obvious benefits are there to see with the immediate restoration of the Bradbury Pound by HM Treasury. There would be sufficient debt-free and interest-free money to meet the needs of the NHS and Social Care to properly look after the sick, vulnerable and elderly in our society; for restoring our armed services and police service to the levels needed to protect our nation's freedoms and sovereignty whilst at the same time providing really effective community policing for everyone; for ensuring that all education is completely free at source whilst compensating those students who are in debt; and for meeting the costs of national infrastructure projects whilst at the same time protecting Britain's strategically important industries such as steel making and shipbuilding. And all this done without the need for any form of direct taxation including Income Tax and Council Tax.

It's all just simple common sense and it would completely guarantee the long-term security, prosperity and happiness of the British nation. And, as happened in 1914 with the Bradbury Pound then, there would be no damaging inflation as the government would be in full control of retiring money as and when required. Unlike the Weimar Republic of the 1930s, where the private central bank and the currency speculators deliberately triggered the hyperinflation, the British people would be in complete charge of their own money creation and money supply. And the best news of all is that the City of London and its cabal of globalist bankers and financiers would be collapsed and defeated for good as every country in the world would follow Britain's lead in creating their own debt-free and interest-free money that's free from the criminal machinations of the BIS and the private central bankers. In other words, the humble Bradbury Pound would spell the absolute end to the mind-set that's behind the appalling global abuse of children!

THE SECOND SOLUTION: RESTORING OUR COMMON LAW TRIAL BY JURY CONSTITUTION TO SECURE REAL JUSTICE FOR ALL.

There are essentially two types of law: The Common Law whereby you are considered 'innocent' until proved 'guilty' and where everyone is allowed to be tried by their randomly selected peers using a Jury to decide their innocence or guilt (judicium parium).

And there is Roman Civil Law whereby you are 'guilty' until proved 'innocent' and where a politically appointed (acceptable?) judge acts as both judge and jury to decide your fate (corpus juris).

For these criminal elitists to achieve their long-desired ambition to see corporate global governance on their terms, the last thing they need is for the people to have any freedoms and mechanisms whereby they can make decisions that can over-ride the government's intentions. A very little-known fact about the Common Law is that a Jury of randomly selected people can annul bad, unfair and unjust Statutes and Acts that have been passed by Parliament – this one simple safeguard assures that the people and not the politicians in Parliament are always sovereign. In other words, the Jury alone decides the law. Unfortunately, in Britain today, the over-riding supremacy of the Common Law has been deliberately and largely airbrushed out of the public's consciousness – whether at university or police college, there is now a definite agenda to educate people into the workings of corporate-led Roman Civil Law with all its Statutes and Acts passed by Parliament in order to micro-manage our lives at the expense of our ancient freedoms and protection as confirmed by the 1215 Great Charter (Magna Carta). We have the Law Society for the Solicitors and the Inns of Court for the Barristers all coming under the corporate sway and guidance of the City of London. We have the Judiciary allowing Judges to act unlawfully as both 'judge and jury' in the County Courts and the Family Courts. We have magistrates instead of the Grand Juries which were abolished in 1933, and we have the so-called UK Supreme Court, the brainchild of Tony Blair, which is Roman Civil Law in action... and to cap it off, all courts (not to mention political parties, government departments, police constabularies and Parliament itself) are listed by Dunn and Bradstreet as being corporations – in other words, courts of justice are actually places of business.

And this is all confirmed by the exposure that our birth certificates create corporate legal fictions which are then used by the legal profession, the politicians and the bankers to both deceive and entrap all of us into Roman Civil Law governance at the expense of our Common Law inalienable rights. And it is this fraud, deception and entrapment that has seen state-supported bogus courts without juries (Star Chambers) unlawfully depriving completely innocent people of their homes, livelihoods and children using completely fraudulent paperwork. Indeed, fraudulent bankruptcies being undertaken by the state have now unlawfully deprived people of billions of pounds. And with all this corruption by the state, it's hardly surprising to know that corrupt police officers, judges, lawyers and politicians are covering up appalling cases of child sex abuse by Establishment-led pedophile rings.

The solution to all of this appalling corruption is very simple – we must restore immediately the full supremacy of our ancient and proven Common Law Trial by Jury Constitution whereby common sense, common decency and the common good always prevail over powerful vested interests thus ensuring that we, the people, are always in complete control over our elected servants in Parliament. And what's good for Britain can be good for every country in the world…or, more accurately, for every child in the world as decent people of goodwill will now have the ability to flush out and bring to justice the perpetrators of human trafficking and child sex abuse. The time has finally come for the sovereign peoples of the world to take back control.

AND FINALLY – THE PEOPLE ARE NOW STARTING TO ORGANIZE…

To get this truth and these proven solutions out quickly to the people of Britain so that they can empower themselves and make the changes needed to completely end their dependency on this corporate greed and corruption, a new mass movement has started which will not stand down until every child in the world can look forward to a life of security, prosperity and happiness.

Out of total respect for the original Chartists in early Victorian Britain, who sought to rid themselves of the tyranny of the wealthy landowners and industrialists, and to the 1215 Great Charter itself, the New Chartist Movement is now emerging from the grassroots and is growing daily as people come across it. Like with the original Chartists, we have a People's Charter with Six Requirements that will regain and protect our sovereignty forever. They are:

1. The restoration of the absolute supremacy of our ancient Trial by Jury Common Law Constitution
2. An immediate and outright end to all forms of Austerity, Poverty and Debt Misery by harnessing Sovereign National Credit
3. The protection of all our Children from all forms of dreadful abuse
4. The safeguarding of our Armed Services and the Police Service from agenda-driven cutbacks and interference
5. The shutting down of the Roman Civil Law Legal System that unlawfully controls all of us by fraud, deception and entrapment
6. The assurance that Science always serves and benefits all of humanity whilst protecting the natural well-being of our planet

The detail in these Requirements can be found at https://www.newchartistmovement.org.uk. They are such that they can be adapted by the people of any country to win back their essential freedoms and to protect their children from slavery and sexual abuse. Indeed, the New Chartist Movement is proud to be associated with the International Tribunal for Natural Justice and totally supports its Judicial Commission of Inquiry into Human Trafficking and Child Sex Abuse and will help all it can to advance the excellent work of this Commission.

THE PAPAL BULLS' INFAMOUS LEGACY: "DOCTRINE OF DISCOVERY"

[Note from the author: This article is not a broad stroke denunciation of Roman Catholicism — far from it. There are many fine Catholics, good people with big hearts. However, we must be aware that there are dark — very dark — moments in the Vatican's history when it certainly did not live up to its own high moral standards. The following exposes pure truth in an honest, resolute look at shadowy timelines in world history known as the Papal Bulls and their subsequent 500-year doctrine, a 'Doctrine of Discovery.']

Bull — the word has connotations, yes?

For your consideration in this brief article, we shall explore the legal fiction principle 'Doctrine of Discovery,' providing an initial eye-opening history and evolutionary root of Bulla Pontificum, the Papal Bull: a highest proclamation document issued by a Roman Pontiff (pope).

WHAT IS A PAPAL BULL?

The Papal Bull is a formal statement, decree, charter, edict or order that is legally binding as a command or decision entered on the papal court record (as if entered by a court or judge). Still issued today by the pope, each and every Papal Bull is deliberate and conscious, considered by the Vatican to be absolute original law for all eternity. These include statutory decrees, dogmatic pronouncements, canonizations of saints, conferring titles to bishops, episcopal appointments, dispensations, excommunications, apostolic constitutions, convocations, etc.

A Papal Bull was (and is) delivered 'open' with a seal attached to the bottom of a single sheet of parchment (written on only one side). In terms of context vs. content, let's say that a Papal Bull is the presentation, format or context for delivering the content or formal decree from any pope. They've been in use since the fourth century CE, though not formally legitimized until the twelfth century when designated as a 'valid' letter from the pope carrying a distinctive bulla – a round metal seal usually made of lead, though on rare and solemn occasions (Byzantine imperial deeds) it was made of gold. Papal Bulls were usually written in antiquated characters known as curialis script and then traditionally sealed with the bulla, known as a Great Seal of the Papacy. Looking like an ancient coin, the round bulla depicted heads of the founders of the Church of Rome, apostles Peter and Paul, with their images separated by a cross on one side, with the issuing pope's signature on the reverse side.

By the thirteenth century, Papal Bull referred to all important documents issued by the Pontiff; and it morphed to a tersely principal papal record in the fifteenth century when an office of the papal chancery was named, 'registrar of the bulls' (registrum bullarum). Old seals still exist from the eleventh century (none in their entirety before 819 CE), with original leaden bulls remaining from the sixth century CE. There are some preserved apart from the document to which they were once attached.

Earliest specimens simply bear the issuing pope's name (on one side) and the word papae on the reversed side. Also, investigation into 'letters' known as Papal Decretals reveal that these were a foundation to the issuance of the bolder, Papal Bulls. Letters were always dated; for further research, one may look to the pontificate of Siricius (384-399 CE) for surviving copies.[1,2]

Please be forewarned! Gruesome discoveries reveal a depraved, sickening use of human skin as a base-material (parchment) for the bulls' official issuance. And, to further dreadful horror of this methodology, it was usually the skin of a sacrificed child or some famous heretic.

With Latin roots, the word 'parchment' generally means 'a mind or soul bound to the fate of death.' Historic origin behind the use of parchment for Papal Bulls (human skin as a writing medium) dates back to occult black magic rituals in honor of 'Lord Baal.' These demonic practices occurred in Tarsus and Ur at the time of Menesheh High Priest Saul (Paul), who was purported to have the largest black magic library with 20,000 books covered with human skin.[3] Lesser mediums began to be used to affix the seal including cured skin of a slain calf, goat (kid), or sheepskin, all employed to hide an earlier ghastly use of human skin. The shocking ritual of murdering children for using their skin under bulls was first outlined in the thirteenth century infamous Grimoire of Roman Pope Honorius III. In this occult book of dark magic spells, instead of plainly using the words 'human child' the word 'kid' was used. (We know the word kid officially means a young goat.) And of course today many use the word 'kids' informally for children (possibly rooted in the German word, kinder.) In any case, the same ritual 'instructions' for the production of parchment through human sacrifice were standardized by this Pontiff. Astonishingly, this has remained for eight centuries as the 'official' method by which leading cult members have sacrificed and murdered children — skinning them to create parchment and thus 'bind the soul to the fate of death.' This standard procedure appeared in subsequent Grimoires of black magic. For more information see Arthur Edward Waite's Book of Ceremonial Magic, however please beware of this introduction to the deranged specifics of rituals used.

ROOTS OF THE FICTIONAL DOCTRINE OF DISCOVERY

The fifteenth century Papal Bulls Romanus Pontifex, decreed by Pope Nicholas V, and Inter Caetera, ordered by Pope Alexander VI, were fundamental declarations that comprise the term known today as the Christian 'Doctrine of Discovery.' This doctrine's religious philosophy encoded a hierarchy of humanity that European, Christian nations (Christendom) were more powerful and consequently, could (and would) conquer any other. Therefore, these 'laws' vested moral and spiritual authority to Christian colonial powers as a perpetual monopoly to brutally and violently conquer any non-Christian lands, thereby facilitating colonization throughout the world. Excerpts from Romanus Pontifex to King Alfonso:

> "... We (therefore) weighing all and singular the premises with due meditation, and noting that since we had formerly by other letters of ours granted among other things free and ample faculty to the aforesaid King Alfonso – to invade, search out, capture, vanquish, and subdue all Saracens and pagans whatsoever, and other enemies of Christ wheresoever placed, and the kingdoms, dukedoms, principalities, dominions, possessions, and all movable and immovable goods whatsoever held and possessed by them and to reduce their persons to perpetual slavery, and to apply and appropriate to himself and his successors the kingdoms, dukedoms, counties, principalities, dominions, possessions, and goods, and to convert them to his and their use and profit – by having secured the said faculty, the said King Alfonso, or, by his authority, the aforesaid infante, justly and lawfully has acquired and possessed, and doth possess, these islands, lands, harbors, and seas, and they do of right belong and pertain to the said King Alfonso and his successors... Therefore let no one infringe or with rash boldness contravene this our declaration, constitution, gift, grant, appropriation, decree, supplication, exhortation, injunction, inhibition, mandate, and will. But if anyone should presume to do so, be it known to him that he will incur the wrath of Almighty God and of the blessed apostles Peter and Paul...."[4]

They sanctioned and endorsed worldwide enslavement, slaughter, and theft wherever no other Christian nation had already laid their claim to land. To reiterate simply, the discovery principle from these bulls meant that the Vatican controlled the world. It decreed that man was able to control another. Basic, decent human rights were subject to the beliefs of Holy Roman Church.

When engaged in the multi-faceted studies of the 'discovery doctrine' one thing is for sure: the subject's scope is vast. Ramifications of these Papal Bulls (and others) have indeed changed the course of world history, affecting untold amounts of people – especially indigenous societies – with devastating impact on their culture and the wellbeing of our entire earth. Quite frankly, there is such a broad historical narrative that this article is only able to scratch the surface of Christendom with its theological papal-franchise patterning. Research points – at all corners – to stunning revelations of severe oppression to our fellow sisters and brothers.

These genocidal, unnatural 'laws' provided an ethical and legal justification for all Christian explorers to confiscate any land and possessions from the inhabitants of 'barbarous nations' known as non-Christians. This caused the barbaric killing or displacement of Indigenous peoples, while their sacred lands were raped and pillaged for the accumulation of wealth — and thereby, power — to the 'holy' Roman Catholic Church. Papal decrees evolved into the discovery doctrine, which has become the basis for our modern ideology of international law. The doctrine's dimensional philosophy continues to negatively affect millions of Indigenous Peoples.

In 1823, the 'Doctrine of Discovery' was actually adopted into U.S. law by its Supreme Court in a notable landmark case, Johnson v. M'Intosh, 21 U.S.

(8 Wheat.) 543. Writing for a unanimous court, Chief Justice John Marshall observed that Christian European nations had assumed 'ultimate dominion' over the lands of America during the Age of Discovery, and that – upon 'discovery' – the Indians had lost 'their rights to complete sovereignty, as independent nations,' and only retained a right of 'occupancy' in their lands. In essence, that means a European power has gained radical title (sovereignty) to any land it 'discovers.'

This highly influential case became the standard for first-year students' curriculum in most U.S. law schools, solidifying the discovery doctrine's place in clarifying contemporary property law. It was an articulation that redacted and consolidated imperial protocol into colonial discovery. So, Marshall's decision was a final codification of the Christian Doctrine of Discovery. Subsequently for almost two centuries, citation to this case's prominent outcome has been primary for federal and state cases associated with Native American land-title disputes.

In other words, per United States property law in use today, Native American nations are still subject to this ultimate authority of the 'first nation of Christendom' (based on the issuance of old Papal Bulls) to claim possession of a given expanse of 'discovered' American lands. This means that they don't hold title to their own 'discovered' territory. Therefore, indigenous people are still declared as only tenants 'occupying' their beloved ancestral homeland — bull! The widespread use of the antiquated, false Doctrine of Discovery in American law means that the U.S. is a vassal of the Vatican. Therefore, the Vatican actually controls corporate entities such as the United States, via Roman Curia law (the administrative apparatus of the Holy See). This is an outdated religious-cultural judiciary logic that has provided a framework for influencing contemporary legal, social, intellectual, and major policy decisions. Think about it realistically — cases are still being decided based on the norms codified in early nineteenth century considerations of doctrinal discovery.

This is evident as recently as in 2005, during a U.S. case, City of Sherill v Oneida Indian Nation of New York. The court ruled that "under the 'doctrine of discovery,' fee title to the lands occupied by Indians when the colonists arrived became vested in the sovereign – first the discovering European nation...and later the original States and the United States."[5]

[5]City of Sherrill v. Oneida Indian Nation, 544 U.S. 197 (2005)

For the last ten years indigenous organizations and natural law advocates have been working diligently and passionately, requesting the pope revoke the Papal Bull-based Doctrine of crime against humanity. According to the Romero Institute, some religions have even joined in this campaign of repudiation against the Doctrine of Discovery: The Episcopal Church, Unitarian Universalist Association, Christian Church, World Council of Churches, New York Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, and the United Methodist Church. Several associations have called for reversal, including thirteen Catholic groups started by the Loretto Community.[6]

Continuing from Ms. Jacques' article in The Sovereign Voice, Issue 3, an esteemed group of worldwide elders has been seeking an audience with Pope Francis to deliver a major missive that the Papal Bulls behind the Roman Catholic Church's Doctrine of Discovery must be officially rescinded. The Long March to Rome gathering took place from 30 April to 4 May, 2016 in Florence, Italy, and culminated in a delegation of eleven indigenous elders meeting with Pope Francis to request that these three Papal Bulls be revoked, and issuing a joint statement to Pope Francis and the Pontifical Council for Justice and Peace. Steven Newcomb, a member of the delegation, shared more of the journey leading up to this historic request.

To further assist the scope of understanding, it's convenient to divide our subject into time-periods, while listing a few Papal Bulls. Some may not directly correlate to this fictional Christian 'Doctrine of Discovery' although I've chosen to include earlier ones (prior to the sixteenth century) to help portray an overall historic milieu. The Roman Catholic Church's egoist claims on territory are criminal, a violation of natural law and sovereignty. And the cruelty proclaimed from the Vatican perpetrated on innocent people is also simply criminal.

We turn now to history...looking back centuries to glean an underpinning for the 'Doctrine of Discovery' rife with dire repercussions as a legacy of injustice seeded by the Papal Bulls:

Early Phase of the Papal Bull

(367 CE) Pope Damasus I deliberately and consciously usurped the natural principles of fair justice through a Papal Bull declaring it heresy to question the nature of Christ and other doctrinal points as decreed at Nicea. This implied that heretics (including their family) could have their lands seized and be sacrificed through torture and death.

(650 CE) Pope Martin I issued a Papal Bull stating that anyone telling a slave to rebuff his master or leave from his service will be excommunicated as a heretic, liable to forfeit of all property with eventual death by burning.

(1095 CE) Pope Urban II published a Papal Bull granting general amnesty for all convicts (robbers and thieves), so they would join an army to conquer Muslim lands. Pope Urban, in releasing this law, told an assembled mass of criminals: "Let those who have hitherto been robbers now become soldiers." Additionally, he granted legal permission (to all crusade participants) to the lawful theft of two-thirds of the property of Muslims with one-third being paid to the church. In 1096, Pope Urban II also granted permission to hundreds of thousands of priests, nuns, and former peasants (who heard about a 'fabulous crusade for personal wealth') to follow the army of the first crusade because the bull's division-of-riches also applied to them.

[6]The Romero Institute https://romeroinstitute.org/blog/revoke-doctrine-of-discovery

(1113 CE) Pope Paschall II established a new enterprise (military organization) known as the Sovereign Order of Saint John. This monastic order (Knights Hospitaller) was founded following the First Crusade.

Papal Bulls Develop

(1136 CE) Though already in use, Pope Innocence I purportedly 'invented' the first Papal Bull, Omne Datum Optimum or 'Every Perfect Gift.'

(1146 CE) The Papal Bull of Pope Eugenius III authorized the Second Crusade against all Muslims at Edessa.

(1155 CE) Pope Adrian IV issued Papal Bull Laudabiliter giving the English King Henry II lordship over Ireland. Thus, Pope Adrian IV falsely claimed ownership to Ireland. "There is indeed no doubt, as thy Highness doth also acknowledge, that Ireland and all other islands which Christ the Sun of Righteousness has illumined, and which have received the doctrines of the Christian faith, belong to the jurisdiction of St. Peter and of the holy Roman Church." Henry invaded Ireland using the authority of this Papal Bull to claim sovereignty over the island, forcing the Cambro-Norman warlords and some Gaelic Irish rulers to accept him as their overlord.

(1187-92 CE) Pope Gregory VIII endorsed the Third Crusade through a Papal Bull, declaring holy war on Muslims in Jerusalem, and pagan Cathars and Jews in Europe. As a result, approximately 1,000,000 lives were lost.

Papal Bulls Harden

(1198 CE) Pope Innocent III issued a Papal Bull declaring "anyone who attempts to construe a personal view of God which conflicts with church dogma must be burned without pity." Regarding humanity, this action so fundamentally goes against all principles of the basic rights and dignities of being human that it represents one of the lowest and darkest marks of history.

(1200 CE) Two years later Pope Innocent III published another Papal Bull granting church ownership of all wealth and property belonging to individuals convicted of heresy. This represents the birth of the all-powerful Arch-Bishops (Cardinals) of the Roman Catholic Church, who robbed Kings, Queens, and Princes to gain astonishing wealth.

(1212 CE) Pope Innocent III devised an inexcusable strategy by issuing a Papal Bull authorizing children to launch their own crusade against Muslims. Parents released 200,000 children; one-third died from the journey and one-third were taken by the Catholic Church for ritual satanic sacrifices – the remaining were sold to slave traders for profit. Because the Papal Bull absolves the Roman Catholic Church from all liability, neither the parents nor sovereign nations can say or do anything about the dreadful act.

(1231 CE) Gregory IX formally issued a Papal Bull decreeing the burning of heretics and other church enemies as 'standard penalty.' This document represents the first time in human history that the satanic practice of burning people alive is made an official law. Pope Gregory IX inserted into the papal registers…the death penalty for heresy…and issued a constitution in which he codified earlier papal legislation on the subject.

Six Vatican councils have certified the issuance of official Extermination Decrees against innocent human beings — these calculations are documented in bulls, all signed by popes.

(1252 CE) Pope Innocent IV was far from innocent when issuing Ad exstirpanda Papal Bull on May 15, 1252. It explicitly authorized the use of torture for eliciting confessions from heretics during the Inquisition. He unequivocally condoned the practice of executing heretics by burning them alive. The bull conceded to the State portions of property to be confiscated from convicted heretics. The State, in return, assumed the burden of carrying out the penalty to the 'crime.' This was one of the clearest corruptions revealing the true dynastic nature of the Vatican — dedicated to despicable deception and cruelty.

(1272 CE) Pope Gregory X issued a Papal Bull banning the discussion of any theological matter outside the church, under the penalty of extreme torture and death by being burnt alive. This supremely malicious Roman Catholic Church law has never been officially repealed.

(1302 CE) November 18th Pope Boniface VIII issued a false statement in the Papal Bull Unam Sanctam when he wrote: "We declare, say, define, and pronounce that it is absolutely necessary for the salvation of every human creature to be subject to the Roman pontiff." This declared that there is no salvation outside the Roman Catholic Church.

(1307 CE) Pope Clement V issued a Papal Bull Pastoralis praeminentiæ on 22 November, ordering that Knights Templar be arrested in Europe, including the confiscation of their possessions. Also, services provided by the Templars involving hospital assistance (with medicine and genuine aid to the poor) could be shut down or destroyed.

(1308 CE) Pope Clement V decreed a further Papal Bull Fasciens misericordiam, which summarized the ghastly, inhuman and unholy conditions by which the Vatican authorized the unspeakable torture and murder of the Knights Templar.

(1343 CE) Pope Clement VI published a bull declaring that in observation of the shortness of human life, he had reduced the Jubilee's span from 100 to 50 years; and in June 1346 he issued another bizarre bull asserting that he had complete control and, indeed, power over 'future life' (heresy of the entire Catholic doctrine). Additionally in this hubric Papal Bull he affirmed that he "could order the angels of heaven to liberate from purgatory the souls of any of them who might die on the road to Rome."

The Papal Bulls' Conquest with Slave Trade

(1400 CE) Pope Benedict XIII decreed in a bull that it is a mortal sin not to leave (in a will) at least ten percent of an entire estate to the Roman Catholic Church.

(1430 CE) Pope Martin V granted by Papal Bull rights to trade slaves in exchange for fees to King John II of Castile, which pioneered a legal framework for establishing one of the most profitable enterprises of the Roman Catholic Church: international slave trade.

(1435 CE) Pope Eugenius IV, deliberately through the Papal Bull(s) of Sicut Dudum, established the enterprise of international 'legal' slave trade

(commencing in Africa). He created a 'lawful' framework for the international trade of slaves establishing a formal license-system giving authority to both territories and numbers of slaves abducted, with a schedule of fees paid to the Roman Catholic Church.

(1442) Pope Felix V issued the Papal Bull Illius Qui endorsing Portugal to engage in slave trade for non-Christians in the Canary Islands, in exchange for fees paid to the Vatican (per slave successfully delivered alive). Slave traders did not have to pay royalty fees to the Roman Catholic Church for 'damaged cargo' when slaves died en route to their destination.

Sealing a 'Doctrine of Discovery'

(1452 CE) Pope Nicholas V issued on 18th of June, to King Alfonso V of Portugal, the Papal Bull Dum Diversas, authorizing the King to diminish Muslims and pagans into perpetual slavery, setting into motion the Portuguese slave trade from West Africa.

(1454 CE) Then, Pope Nicholas V also issued to King Alfonso V, the crucial Papal Bull Romanus Pontifex (mentioned earlier in this article). As a follow-up to Dum Diversas, this is an example of the Papacy's claim to supreme lordship of the whole world, as it declared war against all non-Christians everywhere, explicitly sanctioning and promoting the conquest, colonization, and exploitation of non-Christian nations and their territories during an Age of Discovery.

In numerous creeds articulated during and after the Crusades, non-Christians were considered enemies of the Catholic faith and therefore, less than human. Accordingly in this decree, Pope Nicholas V directed King Alfonso to "...capture, vanquish, and subdue the Saracens, pagans, and other enemies of Christ," to "put them into perpetual slavery," and "to take all their possessions and property."

This reveals the philosophical root of a 'Doctrine of Discovery' especially concerning Christopher Columbus' 'finding' America almost forty years later in 1492. The explorer felt completely justified and authorized to 'take possession of the land' based on this prior, deceptive religious proclamation to conquer and 'own' what was 'discovered' in the name of Christendom.

(1484 CE) Pope Innocent VIII deliberately and deceptively issued the Papal Bull Summis desiderantes affectibus reinforcing the standing church law of allowing marriage annulment and seizure of assets of any person (almost exclusively women) found to be a heretic. His false legal arguments were used by many to justify the suppression of women's rights, starting witch-hunts that lasted 300 years. (This pope created weird fictitious claims to justify the reality of witches including appalling proclamations that witches can fly, change shape, and have intercourse with the Devil.)

(1486 CE) Pope Innocent VIII subsequently published Papal Bull Malleus Maleficarum claiming that belief in witchcraft is heresy and that women are more likely to become witches than men "...because the female sex is more concerned with things of the flesh than men." This false and unholy determination supported suppression of women's rights up until the 20th Century. Even today the Roman Catholic Church continues to repress women's spiritual equality.

(1493 CE) Upon explorer Christopher Columbus' return to Europe having made "great discovery of new land," Pope Alexander VI issued the next significant Papal Bulls in this quest for power. Inter Caetera of May 3 and 4, 1493, 'granted' to Spain (at the request of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella) the right to conquer the lands which Columbus had already discovered, as well as any territory that Spain may 'discover' in the future. Months later, Bull Dudum siquidem dated September 25, 1493, declared the Roman Catholic Church ('under' King Ferdinand) was entitled to all land in South America: "If the Indians refuse, he may quite legally fight them, kill them, and enslave them, just as Joshua enslaved the inhabitants of Canaan."

Thus we've surveyed the foundation for five centuries of false ownership of lands and violent injustices to all the indigenous peoples of the world. Papal Bulls: Romanus Pontifex and Inter Caetera have set the stage for total domination of all non-Christian lands, and have served as the legal foundation for slavery and genocide. These Bulls are the foundation for the Roman Catholic Church's 'Doctrine of Discovery' – and it's time to abolish them, setting into motion a complete restoration of the land and all of her people into a new earth.

Many of us are calling for revocation of these fifteenth century Papal Bulls to spark worldwide dialogue for Indigenous advocates, policy-makers, and all denizens of this planet to address the Doctrine's unnatural policies toward sacred ancestral lands and their people. Let us envisage this beneficial breakthrough for the sake of all sentient beings. May all be happy! So be it!

THE RUDIMENTARY PHYSICS OF RITUAL SACRIFICE OF INNOCENTS

Any modern researcher investigating the status-quo wishing to uncover our historical pathology of money, power, control, and affluence, learns soon enough that the deepest skeleton in the closet is connected to sacrifice of innocents.

It is the underpinning of our civilizational wheel, whether it feels comfortable to acknowledge it or not. It is the source-code to our modern complex of so-called reality, whether it fits into our individual contextual framework or not.

Billions will choose to turn and face the wall…… denial writ large, which is what effectively grants the permissions for this epic tragedy to continue at industrial scale.

A few brave souls will stare this devil in the eye—and begin to make sense of it. These are the souls amongst us who are dynamically beginning the process of enlightening this darkest story in our midst, which will ultimately absolve and redeem the horror and allow us to 'move on' as a civilisation. Certainly it is discovery, enlightenment, and absolution which is paramount, if we are to survive psycho-culturally as a species. Mark Passio, David Icke, Jay Parker, Leo Zagami, Arizona Wilder, Cathy O'Brien, Brice Taylor, Roseanne Barr, Max Igan, and Fritz Springmeier are just some of these noble souls. History will reflect upon them as the great gift to our enlightenment. Proponents of the living principle within the flame of Pure-Truth.

To help us understand the hyper-dimensional aspect of ritual satanic abuse and sacrificial rite, it may help to posit the following: There are two kinds of homo-sapien inhabiting the earth: those who are born into generational satanic, illuminati families and bloodlines, and those who are not. The differential is something approaching a decimal point. In certain concentrated cityscapes (Rome, London, Washington, et al.) one could realistically speak in terms of one satanist to every nine non-satanists. All co-existing in our midst. Friends, neighbours, priests, countrymen. Shocking? … yes. Enough to have most good folk turn off the switch and walk away from the subject—thus allowing the paradigm to continue. It is this shock factor which equates to civilizational dream spell. Rather like an entire planet watching the World Trade Centre towers falling into their own footprint in September 2001—eviscerated—dust—yeah!

The cultists know this stuff amongst themselves. It is common magic. Compartmentalisation is key. They are special—the great unwashed 90% are not. That's you and I—and our children. Amongst the half-a-million plus children who go missing every year in North America alone. Who are never found. Never reappear in this mortal realm.

Similarly, there are two kinds of prime (binary) elements at work in the holonomic field of reality within hu-man, which we, as a sentient species, collectively project into the 'field'—it is fair to say that we are each composed of these two elements in varying degrees.

One of these prime binary elements describes the field of expression which is negatively charged. It can be described as entropic, parasitic, life-depleting, scarcity-based, fear-based, constrictive, mundane, and contained within 'time'. It seeks strength in numbers (collectivism) and it steals false-light wherever it can do so. It thrives on life-force illicitly gained, and it has no conscience to speak of, no moral compass, and no capacity to self-reflect or to enquire within. It is unable to access the quantum (vibral light) umbilical to Source, and so it does indeed exist in a remote, cold, desolate, stricken model of reality. In the strictest sense it has no empathy, and it is this factor which is most relevant. It does not relate or feel the other's pain. It is perfectly situated to become a sociopathic politician, banker, or professional hooligan in any number of modern sectors. It is a prime candidate for participating in occultist nonsense, satanism, ritual abuse, ceremonial bullshit of any order (false-light structural order), masonic blah-blah, secret societies, and playground drama of any order of magnitude.

The other prime (binary) element within our field of hu-man expression is the life-affirming, negentropic, abundant, expansive, creative, sovereign, fearless, timeless (keyed into the immortality principle), kind, considerate, empathic, conscientious, and principled. This aspect of Self is directly connected to Source via the quantum umbilical telegraph (conscience coupled with psionic or 'gut' intuition—'knowing'). This positively-charged element stands sentinel within most of us and is sufficiently charged with self-generating life-force that it does not need to resort to sacrifice in order to steal false-light or 'chi' from a 'victim'. I posit victim in parenthesis because there is never such a thing as a victim in the truest sense.

As power-junkies get drawn ever deeper into the complexes within which they find themselves, they are inevitably required to make a call-of-conscience. They will each discover that the Faustian pact awaits them—the Devil's silver dollar which invites them to extend their palm. To consent. To enjoin.

Most people who are already deeply indentured into the shadowland of one shitty career or another, often concentrated in places like London, Brussels, Davos, Paris, or Washington, will choose the Devil's silver dollar. It is where the fast-track to career ascension lies, where the circle of influence lies, where the realm of Desire ultimately invites us to depart from the 'here and now.' Thus the first step toward the abnegation of soul-sovereignty draws our subject deep into the labyrinth. The invitations start to come in—exotic parties, special meetings with affluent and celebrated attendants, enigmatic and esoteric places and faces, etc. Pedestrian rules no longer apply. Money. Promotion. The masonic allure. The mundane becomes the privileged. The lowly becomes the lofty. The fool walks into the fire.

There are certain rituals which occur, some of them wilfully entered by the subjects and others unwittingly engaged. The imbibing of cats-blood for example, wherein the subject abnegates spiritual sovereignty when their blood-chemistry becomes excited by the cats-blood causing psycho-alteration. This permits lower astral forces to enter and begin to vicariously live through the subject. Thus a classic case of engineered daemonic possession begins.

This happens and has happened to countless souls who placed themselves in such arenas as permit this kind of grotesquery. A cocktail party…a glass of something or other. The subject has still entered this arena wilfully—abnegating psionic intelligence (intuition) and conscience along the way. It is perfect psycho-geometry. There are no victims in this game. It speaks to a self-elected evolutionary passage of a given soul.

Blood rites and esoteric ceremonial bewitchment, innocuous enough at first, soon evolve into full-fledged scenarios which are so immersive and so horrific that they often traumatize the subject into ultimate wilful integration with the full scope of satanic abuse: including pedophilia and child sacrifice.

The 'child' or 'infant' element is important here, because it embodies the innocence….the blood of innocents being the prize.

The blood of highly traumatized (adrenalized) infants represents the highest currency. The highly excitable active molecule release by the pineal, with other hormones, into the bloodstream of the traumatized child is the cocaine of choice to an SRA deviant. The raping or sodomising of an infant causes violent inversion of kundalini or life-force within the infant. The electrical false-light impulse is drawn into the stricken and entropic life-force of the deviant (rapist), and the illicit power transfer occurs. The seminal role of the victim is the soul-covenanted emissary of Source, reclaiming the deviant back on their own journey toward vibral light. There are no victims in this world. There is only karma, dharma, psycho-geometry, and the nesting of polarized storylines in the perfect 'now.' The sooner we all own this the better. Because our capacity to transmute and transcend into higher patterns of evolution and expression can only occur in diametric proportion to our capacity to individually and then collectively flow into this flame of Pure-Truth.

Familiarizing ourselves with the darkest strains of who and what we are as an evolving species on a polarized, dualistic (stricken) plane of expression in this quadrant of the 3D Multiverse becomes our noble journey. Our sacred duty. Yours and mine. In this place we can begin to shed light ('enlighten') the dark recesses of our historical, cosmo-genetical and archeo-cosmological reality field. This is our sacred task today. Fearlessness leads to timelessness and thereby to a reconnect to our Divinity and our higher expression. We are the key to our own unlocking and to our own ascension process.

The fact that the horrors within the basement are becoming exponentially revealed to the light in our time, should give us enormous succor and help us to generate the strength and resolve to begin to dynamically participate in this collective process of civilizational awakening. We should so with delight and with joy.

We must put away childish things, and that means safe and secure conceptual frameworks, cozy cultural and religious systems—all of which have been engineered into our collective cognitive field precisely in order to herd and contain us within a fractured paradigm ultimately hijacked into a monstrous meta-cultural 'trial of separation'.

Study the links provided here by our team of researchers. Study them closely and objectively. Navigate these tragic and woeful stories and spaces with inner integrity and in the knowing that you and I are the change, you and I are the holy grail, the golden key and the 'light of the world'. It is in our capacity for empathy and to relate to the fate and the hurt felt by the 'other' wherein lies our greatest quanta. The quanta which can and will erupt into the ethers at a certain break-point and activate the noosphere, sending hyper-dimensional signals into the field which will allow for the anchoring of patterns of perfection upon our blessed earth, once again. The time is now.

Clinton Corruption

CHILD TRAFFICKING IN HAITI

Hillary was involved in the NGO run by Laura Silsby, the former director of the The New Life Children's Refuge. Silsby was caught attempting to steal and smuggle 33 children from Haiti, most of whom weren't even orphans at the time. Hillarys connection to Silsby's NGO dates back till at least 2001, based on Wikileaks emails.

Someone connected the dots in the Podesta emails and found the Clinton Child Trafficking...seems there were multiple US missionaries in Haiti stealing children, and Hillary at State Dept. sent Bill there after the earthquake to cover up the child abduction scandal, and Laura Silsby was the only missionary Bill couldn't get off the hook....she was trying to get 33 children out of Haiti, and when their identities were verified, they were found not to be orphans, and returned to their parents.

JANIE RAYNE

Janie Rayne was born in Yorkshire, England in 1937 – daughter of British Aircraft Pioneer Robert Blackburn OBE and his second wife, Peggy. She received diplomas from La Sorbonne, Paris in 1956, and from Ashridge College in England in 1957. Janie studied drama and singing in New York from 1960-64, and subsequently worked as an actress and singer for twenty years in the USA, Italy and the UK. She speaks Italian, French, some German and a little Russian.

Always passionate about health, in 1985 she attended the Science and Technology Education & Future Human Needs Conference in Bangalore, India and afterwards published the paper, Communicating the Principles of Health. Janie has always worked tirelessly to bring together the practitioners of orthodox medicine and so-called alternative medicine, most of which has been practiced for thousands of years. Janie Rayne co-produced the first United Kingdom documentary on Aids in 1986 for Central Television, and then went on to produce theatre in the United Kingdom, Ukraine and Russia until 1999 when she became a professional photographer. Seeing life through the creative lens of a camera was a passion since she was an eleven-year-old amateur capturing profound images on film.

Janie has been a supporter of the Humanitad Foundation and its two major initiatives: the NewEarth Project and the ITNJ since their inceptions. Above all she is an absolute passionate follower of the TRUTH.

TIM CRAGG, BSc, LLB

Timothy Cragg was raised in London and read Civil Engineering at Edinburgh University. He subsequently studied law and worked for Allen & Overy in corporate law in the City of London. After several years, Tim left the law to work with his wife, Edith, in their own property company and follow his passion of restoring dilapidated properties. The couple relocated to the South West of France in 1991, to raise their family and continue restoring old buildings, before moving in 2001 to Australia.

Living in rural France was a great influence for Tim in learning about food as medicine. This started a new passion and led to the continuing study of the huge impact that food, lifestyle and environmental choices can have on health. He is now one of the main participants of CoolWellbeing Foundation, a not for profit, non-government, private foundation based in Queensland, where natural health education and practices are promoted, usually pro-bono.

Over the past few decades Tim has learnt that there are many deep-seated problems with the financial, legal, social and medical paradigms. He is a passionate advocate for truth and he is absolutely determined to help to bring about the fundamental shift in consciousness needed to create a more transparent, just and abundant society. Tim feels very honored to join the ITNJ Board of Trustees, supporting this important mission.

Governments and corporations do not serve living men and women in the 21st century, if indeed they were ever intended to. It is incumbent upon those of us who can see through the fog of civilization myopia, to engage our families and our fellows in the pursuit of pure-truth and the restoration of human dignity.

Please contribute if you are able by becoming a donor-subscriber to The Sovereign Voice.
This is where each of us stop asking for permission!

Together we can and will engage the living flame of our highest expression – and beat the false-light into submission.
